Atkinson's Saturday Evening Post

A FAMILY NEWSPAPER, DEVOTED TO LITERATURE, MORALITY, SCIENCE, NEWS, AGRICULTURE AND AMUSEMENT.

Vol. XII. PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER 8, 1832. Whole No. 590.

Fire Proof Doors, &c
CHARLES EVANS.

P. Calibreath,
LADIES' SHOES, MISSES AND CHILDREN'S, of various Cuts and Colours, to be of the most durable, and much

RS BUSCH,
RER OF BRUSHES,
ry Description,
THIRD STREET,
LADELPHIA.
ity of first quality shoemaker's brushes for stock makers. jan 28—1y of Penmanship.

the corner of Sixth and Franklin Square. This System has over all others; the ease and rapidity of both right and left in writing, are who have made trial of it, and many
The Professor's Models of Penmanship, Duncan, e don, acknowledged to be or all others may be spoken of as simply one Professor Duncan, who was at artist as any, elegant and correct
proficiency of the student appears any such thing
of an elegant hand writing in five
has had an ample experience in the business
teaching to the satisfaction of his patrons
ing to the subject of his system
ation in the United States, and Canada
time for least expense, if thus attended by them.
of the first respectability and taste
from 8 A. M. to 1 P. M.—
-KEEPING.
has just completed his new Theatre superior over all other systems of the merits of the first taste; his in twenty lessons generally, a with the new form of
for Ladies and Gentlemen, and upwards
may 26—tf

Complaints.
MINATIVE BALSAM, one of the
CHILDREN, the SUMMER
unrivalled with the utmost con-cine Balsam, relieves the infant from
speed, in BOWEL COMPLAINTS,
DIVERTERY, and in all of the STOMACH and LI-
INDIGESTION, SICK HEAD-
and flushes have been failing once
and, detailing cures of great
of up in vials, accompanied with ample to, at the low price of 25 cents per Sold by most Druggists in the city and ends keeping a supply on hand.
BUDD WEST & Co.
from whom the agents though the
april 7—eow*

or Indigestion
ion, office 117 South Third street,
Mr. Boone Hotel—Hours from 7 to
M.
having been afflicted with this so aggravated form for almost five of the best advice in the popular systematic writers of Europe,
and application of their means so
most permanent benefit, he thinks it difficultly discovered a combi-
he has perfectly cured in a short attended with almost general success.
The Professor's Medicine, Dr. Duncan, e
don, acknowledged to be
or all others may be spoken of as simply one Professor Duncan, who was at
artist as any, elegant and correct
proficiency of the student appears any such thing
of an elegant hand writing in five
has had an ample experience in the business
teaching to the satisfaction of his patrons
ing to the subject of his system
ation in the United States, and Canada
time for least expense, if thus attended
by them.
of the first respectability and taste
from 8 A. M. to 1 P. M.—
-KEEPING.
has just completed his new Theatre
superior over all other systems of the merits of the first taste; his
in twenty lessons generally, a
with the new form of
for Ladies and Gentlemen, and upwards
may 26—tf

BRODNEGAL.
Complaints.
MINATIVE BALSAM, one of the
CHILDREN, the SUMMER
unrivalled with the utmost con-
cine Balsam, relieves the infant from
speed, in BOWEL COMPLAINTS,
DIVERTERY, and in all of the STOMACH and LI-
INDIGESTION, SICK HEAD-
and flushes have been failing once
and, detailing cures of great
of up in vials, accompanied with ample
to, at the low price of 25 cents per Sold by most Druggists in the city and
ends keeping a supply on hand.
BUDD WEST & Co.
from whom the agents though the
april 7—eow*

or Indigestion
ion, office 117 South Third street,
Mr. Boone Hotel—Hours from 7 to
M.
having been afflicted with this so aggravated form for almost five
of the best advice in the popular systematic writers of Europe,
and application of their means so
most permanent benefit, he thinks it
difficultly discovered a combi-
he has perfectly cured in a short
attended with almost general success.
The Professor's Medicine,

ABBER SHOES,
With Leather Soles,
flannel linings, trimmed with fur, and designed to be worn the Rubber, are now offered on hand or manufactured to order, to any approved pattern of plain leather Rubber Shoes.
S. D. BREED,
No. 4 North Sixth street.

Wooden Ware
FACTORY STORE,
No. 126 Market Street, fourth side, between Water and Front streets.
Tubs, Pails, Churns, Washboards, Brooms, Wooden Ware, Carpet Bags, Baskets and sieves, brooms, wooden ware, carpet bags, maple tubs, pails, churns, washboards, hickory brooms, market baskets, sieves, door mats, door chains, door springs, door locks, door latches, door bolts, door knobs, door plates, door springs, door locks, door latches, door bolts, door knobs, door plates, door springs, door locks, door latches, door bolts, door knobs, door plates

I sought, I cast my eyes below! At the same instant, a blazing comet whirled through my eyes, burst behind my crowned with a veil of darkness, succeeded by one of fire,—I was seized, in short, with the worst, yet the most delicious, Poetic, nearly, Lind paroxysm of mind I remember to have felt, since I stood at A. I cannot express to you what I felt at the moment, when I heard voices close to my ears, uttering the most dreadful blasphemies! It was the workmen! I opened my eyes to continue my perilous journey, for I felt that if I remained a minute longer in this situation, I should die over a brilliant flame.

"He was advancing with the firm and steady step that never shaks, when he felt the wood crack under him! He was then in the middle of the plank, and the weight of his body, so much greater than that of the other workmen, must necessarily break the bridge, and he be precipitated to the bottom.

"'Ah!' said a lad, who heard the wood crack, the plank is rotten! The unhappy man will fall.'

"He did not pronounce the words for the hand workmen placed his hand upon the lad's mouth. "When Robert reached the other side, and saw the plank, the abyss, and death behind him, he fell upon his knees and poured forth his humble thanksgiving to Almighty God for his deliverance from danger.

"'Ah! my friends,' said he to the workmen, with a tone of ineffable joy and his eyes swimming in tears, 'how good is God!'

"But instead of sharing his delight, the workmen cried out with fearful fury:

"'Curses! Frustrated! Rascal! scoundrel! hurled the curse of curses, Vulcan have you frightened us!'

FOREIGN VARIETIES.

From an English Paper.

TORY PROFESSION OF FAITH.

I believe that the Poor should be slaves of the Rich;
I believe that the Irish should be in a ditch;
I believe that the Rich should be ruled by the Sword;
I believe that the Poor should be ruled by the Word;
I believe that the Peasant should never be taught;
I believe that the Patriot let scoffs to be bought;
I believe that the System of credit is good;
I believe that the Government should be ruled by bankers;
I believe that all Government Loans and M. P.'s,
May increase and multiply, to the Devil's pleasure,
Year a Barlow, who can see a Temporal Peer,
Should have nothing to do with twelve thousand a year;
I believe in the Good of the National Debt;
I believe that it is not half large enough yet,
And I believe no Reform is fit by all I can't get.

It is said that Nichols, one of the best gunners in the American Navy, is son to a barber, who formerly resided at Gay Head. His skill as a marksman is surprising. When about four years of age, he was awoke one night by a rat, who was leisurely gnawing his ear, and he, with as much ease as though it was a piece of mat old Dutch cheese. Young Nichols cautiously took a loaded pistol from under his pillow—for even at that early age the best of his genius had become fully developed—and fired at the rat without rising from his recumbent posture. The ground was covered with blood, shot only—but so true was the aim of the youngster, that both took effect, each one entering an eye of the rat, who fell dead on the spot, without a struggle.

SUICIDE FROM LOVE.—At Taunton, last week, an Inquest was held on the body of a young woman, named Mary Ann Chilcott. It appeared that she had been unlawfully attached to a young man named Hutchins, who was found drowned in the river a few weeks ago. Since then she had been in a state of despondency, and was very anxious to learn the exact spot of the river in which the body of her lover was found, and frequently spoke of her wish to die, and determination not to live, in a wandering manner. On Wednesday evening her body was discovered floating in the river near the spot where Hutchins was found drowned; and though she was seen to move when first observed by an old woman, yet ere she gain an shore, before she could be got out of the water, she was dead. Her bonnet was hanging on a gate near the spot, her shawl and shoes, and a religious tract, lay on the ground. A Coroner's Inquest was held on the body, and returned a verdict "Temporary Derangement. She was buried at the expense of the father of her unhappy lover, and laid in the same grave. A large concourse of persons attended the funeral, and evinced much feeling for the unfortunate lovers.

The speech of Metullus Nemidicus, a grave and eloquent man, on the subject of marriage, contained this passage: "If, Romans, we could live without a wife, we should be all without that source of vexation. But nature has so ordered it that we can neither live with them happily enough, nor without them by any means; we must decide for lasting security, rather than a transient gratification." To Virgins are offered "Sighs, Vows, Tears, Sighs, Love, Delight, Joy, Pleasure, Sight of my eyes, &c. But as soon as they become married, instead of these, they are changed, indeed, the terms then applied to them are 'plagues' 'tempests' 'torments' 'fevers' 'continual fevers,' and to sum up all in a word, 'intolerable evil.'

The population of France, according to the census of the present year, which is to be decreed authentic for five years to come, is 34,509,934. Of the 80 departments, those of the Seine, and Nord have the largest population—viz: each more than 900,000. The population of Paris alone is 774,338, of which the 12th arrondissement has the largest share, 77,866.

EXTRAORDINARY SAGACITY OF A DOG.—On Saturday night, a boy 13 or 14 years of age, who was clambering on the face of a rock in the Grange quarry, Edinburgh, in search of bird's nests, fell into the deep pool below. His companion ran away, calling for help, and a crowd soon collected. A house carpenter who was present, ran off to the Grange House, for Sir Thomas Lauder's Newfoundland dog. The animal immediately sprang in the pool, and made for the place, where the lad was thought, under water, was still visible.—Received once or twice, and, seizing the boy's head, which chanced to be uppermost, he in vain, attempted to bring the body ashore; for, as if aware of the necessity of using the most gentle treatment to so vulnerable a part, he took so gentle a hold, that the head slipped from his mouth, and the lad sank deeper and deeper at every successive attempt. Again he dived, and appeared on the surface raising the head gently between his two forepaws, but again it slipped from his grasp, and sank deeper than ever. The dog now seemed to take council with himself he made one or two circles near the place where the body had disappeared, and then dived. He remained under water so long, that the bystanders began to entertain considerable fears, for his safety. At length to the great satisfaction of those present, he appeared holding the corpse by the arm, and with his head thrown aside, so as to keep the head of the lad farthest clear above the water, and in this way he bore it to the bank. The body was immediately taken to a house, and all exertions and means were used to restore the body to animation, but in vain. The dog would not leave the body, but stand by it, licking the face, and exhibiting his full share of the sympathy excited by this melancholy catastrophe. There was not the slightest scratch on the boy's head or face.—(Scotsman.)

GOSSIPS'S LAW.—"When is a lawyer like a young crow?" and a puzzling barrister to Tom Quibble the other day. "When he's trying his first cause," answered Tom.

PAPER CURRENCY.—All have no doubt heard of the Frenchman's shirt making machine, which was contained in a very small box, into one end of which you put the raw hemp, and which in the course of a few minutes, comes out the other a perfect shirt, ready washed, starched and plaited. We cannot vouch for the accuracy of the above story, but the following which approaches very nearly to it, may be depended upon, and as a striking instance of the perfection to which the manufacture of this country have attained. A cargo of rags arrived from Hamburgh, one morning, at the port of Leith. They were immediately entered at the Custom house, landed and conveyed to the paper mill, six or eight miles off. They were then converted into paper, carted back to Edinburgh and the manufacturer took home with him in the evening a copy of the Edinburgh Courant, printed on the paper, which had only arrived in the country that morning in the shape of rags!—The Original.

IRELAND.—The Rev. Mr. Aylward, Catholic Curate of Thomastown, got out of bed about one on Monday morning, in consequence of hearing a noise in the street, occasioned by the rioting of some persons on their return from the anti-tithe meeting at Ballybale.—He threw open the window, and was in the act of addressing the mob below, when he unfortunately fell into the street, and was killed on the spot.

NEW CARDINALS.—A letter from Rome, dated the 25th June, says—"The Pope has just created 9 new Cardinals, namely, the Treasurer of the States of the Church, the Governor of Rome, the Major Domo, the Master of the Chamber, the Nuncios of Vienna, Madrid and Lisbon, Father Velsi, Master of the Palace, and Monsignor Gazzoli. Each of these new Cardinals is to receive a salary of 2,000 crowns, or about £540 sterling.

COFFEE.—The total quantity of coffee imported into Great Britain in 1831, was 42,792,768 lb.; into Ireland, 2,18,948 lb. The quantity exported from Great Britain was 22,563,760 lb.; from Ireland 1,744 lb. The net amount of duty received in great Britain, on coffee imported, was 599,831l. 12s. 6d., and in Ireland, 24,412l. 6s.

NATURAL UMBRELLA.—The Talipot of Ceylon grows to the height of one hundred feet, and its leaf is so large that it will cover from sixteen to twenty men like an umbrella.

BURNT THE CHURCH, DEVIL.—A person cross a bridge—On Stone Tor is a church, in which sermons are engaged from Scriptures, "Upon this Rock will I build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." It is said that the parishioners make weekly atonement for their sins, for they cannot go to the Church without the previous penance of climbing this steep, and the pastor is frequently obliged to humble himself upon his hands and knees before he can reach the house of prayer. Tradition says it was erected by a mason in commemoration his escape from Shipwreck on the coast, in consequence of the Tor serving as a guide to the pilot. There is not sufficient earth to bury the dead. At the foot of the Tor resided, in 1809 Sarah Wilmore, aged 109 years. She never lived further out of the parish of Brent. The three adjoining ones, she had twelve children, and a few years before death cut five new teeth.—Tyne's Family Physicgnomer.

EGYPTIAN SPECTACLES.—The Ignorant, big Brass Spectacles, which in the first Greek and Roman ages entered the Baltic, has arrived at Constantinople, having on board two colossal sphinxes of granite, as a present from the Pasha of Egypt to the Russian Autocrat.

Evening Post.

Saturday, Sept. 8th.

Office No. 14 Hudson's Alley, where all kinds of books, pamphlets, and ornamental job printing, also executed, at a short notice, on the most reasonable terms. Subscriptions due the Post and Cathol and Journal of Health also received. All post paid letters, directed as above, will be promptly attended to.

Literary Premiums.

The publisher of the Casket, a monthly periodical of Literature, Fashion, Belles-Lettres, Science, Music and the Arts, with the view of increasing the attraction of the new volume of that work, to be commenced in the first of January, 1833, and at the same time to aid the cause of American Literature, offers the following premiums for original compositions.

100 DOLLARS

For the best original Tale, founded on events connected with American History.

50 DOLLARS

For the best original Essay, on any subject within the scope of moral philosophy or science.

25 DOLLARS

For the best original Poem, not exceeding seventy lines the subject left to the discretion of the writer.

The articles placed in competition for the premiums will be submitted to the following gentlemen, who have consented to act as judges and award the prizes.

ROBERT MORRIS, Esq.
CHARLES NAYLOR, Esq.
ROBERT T. CONRAD, Esq.
JOHN PARKMAN, M. D.
REV. MATTHIAS, Esq.

All communications to be forwarded (post paid) to the office of the Casket, No. 12 Hudson's Alley, Philadelphia on or before the 1st December next. The premiums will be awarded as soon after as possible, that one or more of the successful pieces may appear in the January No. of the Casket. Address SAM'L C. ATKINSON, Pr.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4, 1832.

☞Editors with whom we exchange may aid the cause of literature by noticing the above.

For the Saturday Evening Post.

FIRE ASSOCIATION OF PHILADELPHIA.

At a Stated Meeting of the Board of Delegates held September 3d, 1832, for organization, the following persons were duly elected officers, to serve the ensuing year, viz:

PHILIP GARNET, of the Philadel Fire Co. President.
ALEX. HENRY, Hope Hose Vice President.
ANDREW BOYLE, Percy Hose Secretary.
JESSE CONDY, U. S. Fire Treasurer.

The following Delegates were duly returned to represent their respective Companies, viz:

ENGINE COMPANIES.

America. Not represented.
Relief. Jeremiah Boone, Anthony M. Buckley.
United States. Joseph Reakirt, —— Dalton.
Diligent. Joseph Lewis, John H. Brown.
Washington. William W. Weeks, Andrew Craig.
Humane. George F. Gaskill, Henry Waugh.
Harmony. William R. Maxfield, Isaac Lloyd, Jr.
Franklin. John W. Ryan, John B. Garrett.
Delaware. Horatio G. Rowley, Robert E. Nuttle.
Columbia. Chalkley Baker, John Miller.
Good Intent. Henry Kuhl.
Relief. William S. Peck, Joel Bates.
Hand in Hand. Nicholas Le Huray, Jr. Chas. J. Jack.
Northern Liberties, No. 1. Henry M. Crawford, Peter A. Keyser.
Franklin. Edward G. Shaw, F. C. N. Wahon.
Philadelphia. Philip Garrett, Benjamin Matthias.
Pennsylvania. Samuel F. Griffith, Thomas T. Fith.
Vigilant. George W. Tryon, Emanuel Shoble.
Wessacoe. Mitchell Sanders, David Shoemaker.
Hibernia. James M'Donald, William H. M'Donald.
Fair Mount. Wm. S. Fredericks, George G. Clarke.
Frankford, No. 1. Not represented.
Frankford, No. 3. Jacob Bennell, Osman Rood.
Globe. Not represented.
Southwark. John Allen, John Stanley.
Good Will. Jacob R. Eckfeldt, Samuel Owen.
Hope. Samuel Morrow, Alexander Brown.
Assistance. George Fox, Andrew D. Cash.

HOSE COMPANIES.

Southwark. Thomas E. Spencer, Wm. Ireland.
Columbia. Adam Dudgeon, Wm. D. Haslett.
Perseverance. Andrew Butler, Peter Fritz.
Humane. Mordecai Y. Bryant, Robert M. Post.
Good Intent. George Jeffries, George K. Childs.
Hope. Alexander Henry, Francis Rood.
Washington. Charles Hoskins, Lemuel Bird.
Philadelphia. Samuel J. Robbins, Samuel C. Bunting.
Phœnix. Robert Steele, Richard M. Johnson.
United States. S. C. Kennedy, Wm. F. Foreignah.
Diligent. Joshua M. Hopper, Joseph K. Schell.
Niagara. Wm. T. Flanagin, Hugh Grover.
Resolution. John J. M'Cahan, Wm. F. Slaughter.
Neptune. Thomas Wilson, Nathaniel Hodge.
William Penn. Charles Dalany, David Corks.
America. William Jackson, John H. Helmuth.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT.—We learn from the Washington (Pennsylvania) Examiner, that on Thursday last, Mrs. Graham, wife of Mr. Robert Graham, of Donegal township, went out, leaving her youngest son, aged about twenty-two months, asleep in the cradle, with a small boy to watch him.—When she returned, the boy was pulling the child from a kettle of boiling water, which was hanging on the fire. The child was so much scalded as to live only seven or eight hours.

His honor the Mayor has received from some benevolent and anonymous donor, the sum of Fifty dollars, to be devoted under his direction, to the special relief of unfortunate children, thus bereaved by the cholera. That gentleman has handed this kind donation to the generous ladies who have devoted themselves to the care of the children referred to.

Between four and five o'clock on Sunday afternoon, four fine horses, attached to one of the Germantown stages, took fright while standing in front of Mr. Haws' tavern, in Race near Fourth street, and set off down to Fourth, and turned down Fourth. When they arrived near Cherry street, the stage came in contact with a pile of lumber and capsized, and dashed the only passenger, a small boy, who was holding the reins, upon the pavement, with trifling injury and a deal of fright. The horses and fore wheels have parted company with the rest of the establishment, and proceeded on to Market street, where they ran foul of a milk wagon, and made sad work of it, injuring all the horses materially, and one or more fatally.

On Friday week, near Springfield, Clark co. Ohio, a bold attempt, by six men, to rob a United States Mail Coach, was baffled by the courage and readiness of the driver, whose name we should not omit if our informant had ascertained it. Two of the assailants seized the leaders by their heads, while their comrades threatened the driver. He whipped up, and his horses as resolute as himself, galloped on and shook off the robbers.

ARTIFICIAL HANDS.—The Salem Gazette mentions that Mr. Increase Hill, an ingenious artizan in that town, has just finished a pair of artificial hands which, in their admirable adaption to the multifarious uses of those important members, are said to surpass any thing of the kind ever before seen in this quarter. The unfortunate young man to whose necessities they are destined to minister, came from the country, and has already tested their efficiency in various ordinary manipulations, such as writing, cutting food, &c.

SURGICAL OPERATION.—On Saturday last, an ossification or bony substance, was taken from the upper jaw of a horse, which is said to have originated from a tooth.—The tumor after it had been removed, weighed three pounds, and had been two years on the jaw when the operation was performed. Gentlemen having a desire to see the horse and the ossification, can be gratified by calling on Dr. Cook, No. 14 Prune street. The operation, together with the stopping of the blood, was performed by Dr. Cook in about eight minutes.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT.—An elderly man was seen riding rapidly on horseback through Beverly on Saturday evening last, with the object of his dearest affections in his arms.—He suddenly let his darling fall to the ground, its neck was instantly broken, and its spirit fled. The consequence was, that the man was obliged to keep sober the whole of the next Sabbath!

THE LARGEST FLOWER AND THE LARGEST BIRD.—In 1818, Dr. Arnold discovered in the island of Sumatra a flower which he named the Rafflesia Arnoldi, and which, remarkable and called with such pomp, is the largest vegetable production in the world. The flower itself indeed had never come to perfection, but its extraordinary size, compared to some flowers, leaves no uncertainty calculated to lead one to conclude that it was as large as cow's horns, and the entire weight of the blossom computed to be fifteen pounds. Temple, in his account travels in Peru, states that he shot a condor, and found means to measure the spot, from one to the following dimensions of its size.—When the wings are extended, they measure forty feet in extent, from point to point, the feathers are twenty feet in length, and the quill part of them, one foot in circumference. He gives the fellow one of Sulsal in the Arabian Nights, but by dimensions, as here given, none on good and very sound authority.

We have from a trial of the flowing sandbar which is represented by Mr. J. M. Shoberson, of the Merchants' Coffee House, that it is highly serviceable. Pure water is a necessity, for health, depending the existence of epidemic influences and the water which comes from our hydrants is often more or less tainted. This, the only objection to which it is liable, is removed at a very small cost and with exactness by any tenants, by the use of the Jar, which may be had of Mr. Sanderson. The process of filtering is easy and quite simple.

GOOD AGENTS.—In one of the courts in New York, a blacksmith who had a gill of swearing to particulars, was called on to count in witness between two opposers of his, as a bar suit the business in question being about 75 cents. The judge, after hearing his testimony, asked him why he had not advised his workmen to smile, the cost being five times the amount of the gill. In reply, the witness (a LEGATEE) said the fellows ought to smile. To avoid the consequence would make them too much, the lawyers their shadows, and by lying if they got into your Honor's court, you'd "knock off the costs."

LONGEVITY.—The population returns of the Russian Empire for the year 1830, (only of those professing the Greek Religion, gives in the table of deaths of the single year, more than 1000 over 100 years of age.—There were 69 between 115 and 130, 50 between 130 and 135, 30 between 135 and 140, and 4 between 140 and 150. The population for the same period were 1,949,—000 and the deaths, 1,337,941—Number of births 56?,—000.

"THE LAND OF SOBERY HEARTS."—The Boston Atlas mentions that upwards of ninety persons were, during the last week, examined by the House of Correction by the Police Court of that city. Among them forty-two were committed for being common drunkards! The Atlas very significantly adds, "many of the wretched beings were from New York."

A Natchez paper states, that on the morning of the 28th ult. the body of a respectable old man by the name of Jack Alderes, a native of Caledonia, and for 30 years an inhabitant of Natchez, was found in an alley, near Rankin's Hotel. His throat was cut, his scull fractured and his face bent in the wound, the dogs were eating him. His wife and a negro woman, whom he recently purchased, have been committed.

CITY POLICE.

Reported for the Saturday Evening Post.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 3.—ROUGHRY.—Wilkins, a watchman, brought up a man calling himself Moses Dragoo, whom he had found in the act of breaking open the premises in Mr. Potts' store on the wharf, near Chestnut street. The key of the store, as well as one which opened the entrance of the adjoining building, was found in his possession, without his being able satisfactorily to account for the fact. His intention was, no doubt, to plunder, though this supposition received but little support in his decrepit appearance. He was committed.

LARCENY TO SOME PURPOSE.—A fellow named McCormick—the same chap who, a short time since, offered a reward for the apprehension of two Irishmen, who, he alleged, had waylaid him on the Old York Road, near the city, and robbed him of 2700 dollars—was examined on seven or eight distinct charges of larceny of clothing, &c. the property of different individuals. On Friday last, he entered one of the Ferry houses near Market street, and affecting to be a boarder, went up stairs, rummaged the apartments, and collected together a clever bundle of valuables, with which he was making off, when he was detected by the landlord, and arrested. He was sent to jail.

TAINTED MEAT.—Upon complaint of one of the Market inspectors, a victualler in the High street market, was heavily fined for exposing to sale on his stall, spoiled meat. The penalty will probably make him more careful in future.

FEMALE CAPTAIN.—Benedict had in custody a young man calling himself Thomas Worrell, who, it appeared, attempted the night previous, at the lodgings of a citizen, for assault and robbery. According to the statement of the watchman, the citizen and a lady were walking peacefully along, when they were accosted by the prisoner, who insisted that the lady was his, by right of prior claim, and that the citizen was guilty of an attempt to defraud him of his rights. In support of his claim, he assaulted and abused his successful competitor, and likewise the watch, when apprized to as arbiter of the dispute.

Warren contended, that the stranger had "cut his oat," by wheedling the girl with flattering words, and that as a gentleman he was bound to demand satisfaction. He was bound over to keep the peace.

POWER OF BEAUTY.—Mary Brady, an antiquated lady in dishabille, with one black but not brilliant eye, was found by a watchman, staggering along Chestnut the streets, at a late hour last night, and when admonished that she should be home, frankly said, she had none. The gentleman offered to give her lodging in the watchhouse, which was accepted. On their way thither, they were met by one George Hamilton, half seas over, who, by a happy coincidence, discovered that Mary was a beauty, and in distress. He instantly resolved to become her protector, and bawling out to the officer to stand, he demanded to know who dare hurt a hair on the head of the girl of his choice. The officer bade George to be quiet, but George resolutely seized the unknown and was hauling her off, when the watch rallied and took both prisoners. This morning Mary was reprimanded for her strolling propensities, and George fined for intoxication.

A DESPERATELY BUTCHER.—A watchman named Smith, deposed that he was overtaken last night, at a late hour, by a Mr. B. formerly in the city employ, and requested to make prisoner of an Irishman, whom B. alleged was intoxicated. Smith replied that the man was not disorderly, and if he would go home peacefully, he would not take him to the watchhouse. This did not satisfy B. who appeared bent upon knocking up a quarrel, and he charged Smith with favoritism, and threatened, unless he took up the Irishman, to report him to the Mayor for delinquency. Smith advised B. to go home, or he would probably be compelled to take less prisoner; and this course, if followed, would have saved him much disgrace. B. with a man intoxicated it is useless to reason; B. became more and more insulting, and when Smith found it necessary to take him into custody, he seized his ance, and gave him a deal of difficulty.

B. this morning attempted a justification by alleging that Smith, once on a time, sold his inexpressibles for a gill of whiskey, but this availed nothing, and he was fined.

TUESDAY.—A BRUTAL HUSBAND.—Mrs. Catharine Hane appeared before his honor this morning, to lay a serious charge against her husband, and to claim protection against the violence with which he constantly threatened her. She declared, on her oath, that the conduct of Mr. Hane has been such as, in her opinion, to endanger her life. 'For weeks past he has been constantly drunk, and when he returns from the grog shop to his dwelling, he wreaks his ill nature upon her and her unoffending babes.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray, a respectable gentleman and lady who reside in the same house, testified to the good behaviour of Mrs. Hane, and to the savage propensities of Hane. The character they gave this monster would do discredit to a barbarian.

Hane stood before the bar, with the marks of a severe beating visible upon his face and eyes, the work of some of his own cousins, with whom he had lately quarrelled. He growled out a flat contradiction of the statements of all the evidence, and attempted extenuation by charging his wife with some of his own heinous. He was sent to jail.

WEDNESDAY.—TABLES TURNED.—A fellow named James Brown, was brought up by a watchman, charged with an attempt to kill James O'Neill.

O'Neil, being sworn, deposed, that last night the prisoner being "high," or drunk, challenged him to fight in fun. O'Neill agreed, and after a tug and tussle, succeeded in blacking one of Brown's eyes. At this Brown grew outrageously angry, swore vengeance against O'Neill, and ran for a pitchfork to kill him—whereupon he called the watch and had him arrested.

Brown heard this statement with patience, but when it was done, he succeeded in proving, that instead of he being the aggressor, O'Neill had made an unprovoked attack upon him, and beaten him without mercy, so that he was obliged, to save his own life, to threaten to take that of his antagonist. He also made some statements, illustrative of O'Neill's amiable propensities, which reflected upon him but little credit.

Plaintiff and defendant bound for intoxication, and bound over to keep the peace.

The Dublin papers contain an account, from an authentic source, of the death of a large mastiff, from cholera. He was attacked in the morning, vomited about 10 o'clock, and died at half past three. The medical gentleman who attended the animal, and formerly pronounced the case to be one of cholera, gave a decided opinion that the dog had not died of any other complaint than cholera. The dog had been perfectly well a short hour before he was attacked.

A dog exhibiting symptoms similar to the above, was found in Compton street, a few days since. A gentleman in the neighborhood, having stated, "considering that one life is of as little consequence as that of a cholera morbus dog, there was no harm in trying the experiment," there was at once a crowd of bold water upon the dog, when he recovered, wagged his tail and ran towards Dame street. This remarkable cure was witnessed by as many as fifty persons. No camphor was used.—London Gazette.

STRANGE BUT FACT.—Among the applicants for Pensioners before the Vice Chancellor's court, in this county, a few days since, were two men, a father and his son! The former aged about 84 years, and the latter 70. They both received two years per annum in the Revolutionary War; and the father had been through the old French War. While the son was giving his declaration to the court, the father caused much laughter by occasionally correcting him, with "hey, boy, you are mistaken." For, you know, hey! That time was—hey!" applied to a matter of twenty years of "hey, hey!" Jocular and wrinkled visage rendered expressive old age, who irresistibly amusing. It may well be doubted whether a similar case exists in the state.

[Chenango Republican.

SHOOTING MATCH AND GAMMON PUNCH.—"There will be a Shooting Match and Gander Pulling at the house of 'Travis George,' on Thursday next, the 26th inst."

On reading the above in a Middle paper, we thought the d—l is a "gander pulling" thought we! The difficulty of pulling a gander by the Jefferson gander pulling is, we imagine, to be overcome. It means that an old gander is tied on the top of a post, with his head shaded until it is made so slippery as an eel. Those who compete for the prize, ride at full speed, making, as possible, a graft at the neck bearer whenever said gander, if he has the nose of a goose, deigns, like crazy politicians, to do the calling of the pates and pays. It is well calculated to exhibit the dexterity of the competitors. He must be careful in attempting to "clench" the gander's head, that he "sees before him, not to scoop post recovery, as some men do, from the line of politics, in search of office, though, if he succeeds in gander's knowledge box, he may, perhaps, get a gander hold on, or of arm to tear off the poor goose!

"Shade of thought, the jockey of the goal," or will he be got! At all events this is greater jostling, of which it may at least be affirmed, that though it may be fun for Mr. Travis George, by George it can be no fun for the gander!—Wonder if Mrs. Trollope was present at one of Mr. George's powder pulls!—Troy Register.

From the Missouri Republican, Aug. 21.

THE WAR.—The Illinois militia have disbanded, and are now returning to their homes. Gen. Atkinson passed St. Louis on Saturday night last, in the steamboat Warrior, for Jefferson Barracks. A report was brought to Rock Island just as the Warrior was leaving, by some friendly hand, that a band of the Sioux had encountered the Sacks and Foxes, and in the engagement which ensued, from 100 to 140 of the latter were slain. Black Hawk is said to have been of the number. The report rests upon the authority of two hostile Indians who came escaped to the camp of the friendly Sacs.

We learn, further, that Keokuck, the chief of the friendly Sacs, had given up his nephew, a young warrior, as being the murderer of a man named William Martin, in Warren co. Illinois.

Gen. Scott, it is said, has determined to charter the Winnebagoes, for suffering their young men to engage hostilities against the whites, and for affording protection and subsistence to the Sacs and Foxes.

The dwelling house of W. P. Smith, Esq. in Thirteenth street below Chestnut, was entered on Monday morning, about 11 o'clock, by some person obtaining access through the gate at the end of the yard. The latter door was in the way, however, and, in order to be clerk east and pantaloons, nearly new; a pocket book, pinkside, bead guard chain, an amulet with gold chain, silver scissors chain, and divers other articles; and having completed his assortment, walked off without leg or molestation. The family was at dinner at the time of the first story, and a servant had just left the room, and Mr. S. had only a few minutes before left the room. If prowlers are thus bold, it would be well if they the distresings in use day and night.

Three Dutch vessels have been seized, in this port, for having brought out more passengers than the law permits. In one case, the circumstances are worth noting. The passengers are eight more than the legal number. Three of these are Dutchmen, who say they not they enlisted in the Dutch marines, deceived by the nothing officer into the belief that he was to go out there on an emigrants to America. They soon discovered the trick they deserted, and, with the aid of a friend on board, got into the ship secretly, and were not detected until she had been at sea a fortnight. The others are Scotland fishermen, an elderly man, with two sons and two nephews, most of them having served on board the Enterprise. They were, when they saw a man in distress, several leagues from shore, his sing been thrown out by a gale which their boat could not resist. As there appears to be no reason to doubt these facts, the vessel will probably be speedily seized.

RUSSELLAS GAUGING OF EXTRAPTION.—A poor old tar, in a two wooden legs, passed over Hampton Bridge, last week, and paid the usual toll of a halfpenny. On the other side, he called at a public house, and asked for half a pint of rum. "Why, you have had a pint, but his friends were prejudiced by paying the toll—'Toll for what?' said Boniface.—'Why, for the bridge,' replied Jack.—'Lord love you!' said the host, 'you had no right to pay—you are not a foot passenger, for you have no feet!'—'No more I am!' exclaimed Jack. 'Why, I declare, I don't have my copper back!'—With this determination he returned to the bridge, claimed exemption, and had it allowed—thus enabling him to get a full allowance of heavy wet.

HORRIBLE SCENE.—A scene was exhibited near Butler's Falls, on the Delaware, a few days since, the bare recital of which is enough to freeze the blood of the hiter. A gentleman from that quarter gives the following particulars. We do not vouch for their correctness.

A workman on the Canal (we did not learn his name) loaded his gun towards night, as he said, to shoot intruders upon the lock, and left it standing in a corner of his house. His wife, careful of the consequences, during his temporary absence from home, removed the flint, and left the piece in the same situation. The husband, on her return late in the night, ordered his wife to bed, in company with a small boy; where she had lain but a short time, when he came into the room, and pointing the gun directly at her, snapped it, with the intention of lodging the contents in her body. The piece of course missed fire. Discovering that the flint had been removed, he seized a lighted candle, and holding it to the pan, succeeded in discharging it; but from the awkwardness of his position being unable to take aim, the charge missed the intended victim. The woman and boy then fled in opposite directions. The monster, failed in the pursuit of his wife, pursued the boy, and overtook him on one of the locks of the Canal. A slight scuffle ensued, when suddenly losing hold of the lad, he fell over into the lock, and was instantly killed by the fall.—Orange Co. Patriot.

AN IMPOSTOR.—A few of the good people of Troy, N. Y. have recently been duped by an impostor who called his name William Hart. He pretended to be an English Lieutenant, enjoying half pay, &c., and to have been very eminent as a writer for certain leading political journals in London. Professing to come to be an Episcopalian Clergyman, upon invitation he delivered a lecture one week day evening. Having worked himself into the confidence of several unsuspecting individuals, he borrowed 25 dollars to go to New York, to get his semi-annual payment and departed; leaving sundry tailors, hatters, wine dealers, &c. sufferers to no small amount.

At Tallahasse, Florida, on the 20th ult. a party of gentlemen were amusing themselves by galloping round the new race course, when the horse of John W. Edwards suddenly bolted from the path and threw his rider against a tree with such violence that he was instantly killed.—Mr. Edwards was a respectable and industrious young man—He was from South Carolina, where his parents still reside.

The Kentucky Observer states that two miles of the Lexington and Ohio Rail Road have been completed, and that an elegant carriage sufficiently large to accommodate sixty persons, finds constant employment in the conveyance of passengers. The first division of the road embracing a distance of six miles, will be completed in the course of the ensuing month of October, when a locomotive steam engine now constructing, will be placed on the road.

QUAINTNESS.—The Rev. Lorenzo Dow advertises for sale in Richmond, a few copies of the "Chain of Reason," consisting of six links, two hooks, and one swivel—Price 25 cents. This almost carries us back to the good old days of Puritanism, when the press teemed with "Crumbs of Comfort for the Chickens of the Church," "Hooks and Een to hand up Creeped Christians' Breeks," and the like.

QUIBBLE'S LAW.—"So Black Hawk has a son," said a news-hunter the other day; "I wonder what he'll call him" "Tomsey Hawk, to be sure, at this season," answered Quibble.

CHOLERA RECORD.

The almost entire cessation of Cholera in Philadelphia, and the re-opening of business and trade, have induced the Board of Health to discontinue their daily reports. The number of new cases which have occurred during the past week, we have reason to believe are few, but as the weekly report is not made out until Sunday, it is not in our power to publish the precise number. The Board of Health in announcing their determination to discontinue their daily reports, pledged themselves to resume their publication should the disease return. Nearly all the hospitals have been closed.

NEW YORK.—CITY.—The city inspector reports for the week ending on Saturday, 324 deaths, of which 138 were by cholera.—ALBANY, Sept. 3d, 2 deaths. The Board of Health discontinued their daily reports on Saturday; the disease, however lingers with us—two persons were seized on Friday night, after partaking heartily of watermelons, and died on Saturday. A young man who had been somewhat exposed, and had neglected himself, was seized on Saturday and died the same afternoon. The health of the city, however, with some occasional exceptions, is mostly restored; and with care in the use of fruit and vegetables, we may hope for the entire disappearance of the malady.—BROOKLYN, Sept. 3, 7 deaths.—CAYUGA, 4 fatal cases.—OSWEGO HOLLOW, Aug. 29, 1 case.—OWEGO, 1 fatal case.—LYONS, Aug. 26 and 27, 2 cases and two deaths.—ROCHESTER, Aug. 31, 4 cases and 1 death.—LACKPORT, Aug. 25 and 26, 4 deaths.—AUBURN, Sept. 3, within the last 24 hours, 2 deaths.

NEW JERSEY.—LODI, 23d to 26th Aug. 4 cases, 2 deaths, in one family.

MARYLAND.—BALTIMORE, Sept. 2: The Board of Health report for the 24 hours ending at 10 o'clock, 25 deaths by cholera—21 white, 14 colored. Sept. 3, 26 deaths. Sept. 4, 15 deaths.

VIRGINIA.—NORFOLK, Aug. 31: Since the last report there occurred but two deaths from cholera. During the 24 hours ending at noon, there had been but 2 interments, neither of which was a case of cholera.—PORTSMOUTH, no case or death since the 28th; the hospital has been closed.—HARPER'S FERRY: in all, 30 cases, 14 deaths.—SHEPHERDS, 4 cases.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.—WASHINGTON: For the 24 hours ending at 10 o'clock on Monday, 26 new cases, 13 deaths. Several deaths in the First Ward among colored people; number not known, there being no official report. Tuesday, 43 new cases, and 10 deaths.

MASSACHUSETTS.—BOSTON, Sept. 3: The patient who was sent to the Western Hospital on Friday, proved not to be ill of cholera, but of inflammation of the bowels. There have therefore been but 4 cases of cholera in this city, and none now remain. The number of deaths the last week was but 17, which is much smaller than the usual number of weekly deaths.

RHODE ISLAND.—PROVIDENCE, Sunday, 4 cases, 2 deaths.

VERMONT.—BURLINGTON, Aug. 24, 1 fatal case.

CANADA.—PERSCOTT, 21st to 27th Aug. 4 cases, 3 deaths.—FORT HOPE, Aug. 28, 1 case, 1 death.

CHOLERA IN NEW YORK.—The following is an official statement of the whole number of burials in New York, furnished by the Inspectors of the public burying grounds, from the commencement of the cholera to Saturday last—

Week ending	Burials.	Of Cholera.
July 7	191	56
14	349	135
21	687	716
28	879	686
Aug. 4	580	383
11	467	281
18	444	229
25	391	178
Sept. 3	304	137
Total,	4673	2996

PENNSYLVANIA.—Germantown: three cases of cholera have occurred during the past week. Four cases in all have occurred at Norristown, all of which proved fatal.

CHESTER COUNTY.—The Cholera has appeared in a very malignant form, in the vicinity of the White Horse and Knight's Mills, in the Great Valley, some 7 or 8 miles from this borough. We have heard of the following persons who have become its victims:—On Friday the 17th ult. a child of George Davis, died on Sunday, the 19th, his wife. Mr. Davis himself was attacked, but has recovered. On Wednesday, 22d, Jaffies Speer, his mother, aunt, and a young man living with the family. All were inhospitable, and ALL ARE DEAD! The house, or rather hovel, in which they lived, perish all its contents, was burnt immediately after the bodies were buried. On Thursday, the 23d, widow Miles, who was attending in George Davis's family, and there took the disease. On Sunday, the 26th, Mr. George Hall, who formerly lived near the Boot tavern. He was, we believe, a respectable citizen. On Saturday, the 25th, William Oyster—he was at the appraisement of sundry cows, pigs, &c. of Speer's and was attacked shortly afterwards. Making a total of 11 cases and 9 deaths. It is reported that several cases have occurred lower down in the valley, on the road to Downingtown, but we have not learned. Mr. Mitchell, the general superintendent of the rail road, is about establishing Cholera Hospitals along the line of the road. The charge of Hospital No. 2 is committed to Dr. J. M. Pugh.

From the N. Y. Courier & Enquirer.

"SPECIES APPROPRIATIONS."—The laxity of the times is attributed to the principles of our forefathers are abandoned—the maxims of our mothers forgot.—In politics, in religion, in love, in business, in marriage, and in all the other concerns of human life, we are infected with bad principles and worse motives. Jefferson recommended "specific appropriations for specific purposes;" the principle of late has been utterly and entirely abandoned. It was but the other day that a young gentleman of Hartford, Philadelphia Prices of Provisions.—The very high prices prevailing for the Yellow Fever in 1798, and similar in 1793, induced many persons recently resident in the neighborhood of that disease in these years, to conjecture it would be dearer in the prevailing pestilence. To furnish some information on the subject, we have gathered the following from the papers of 1798. Some dates are wanting.

Deaths by Yellow Fever in Philadelphia in 1798.

Aug.	26	33	Sept.	14	80	Oct.	1 117
	27	37		15	[illegible]		2 98
Sept.	1	41		16	90		3 90
	2	44		17	84		5 92
	3	46		18	90		6 97
	4	49		19	95		9 97
	5	50		20	90		10 91
	6	52		21	90		11 91
	7	57		22	85		12 90
	11	67		24	94		13 87
	12	68

The disease abated as the cool weather came on, and disappeared by the close of autumn. It prevailed the same year, to a limited extent, in N. York, Boston, and several other places. In the month of August, 1798, the deaths in Philadelphia were—to August, 1798	324

in 19 days in December, 1798	264
do. do. 1793	130
From August 8 to October 3, 1793	1775
do. do. 1798	1847

to 1793 it was calculated that 17,000 inhabitants left Philadelphia during the sickness. In 1798, 20,000.

A Philadelphia paper of October 8, said "We may rationally conclude there are not more than 2,000 souls in the city." The disease was very fatal. The greatest number of new cases we recollect to have noticed on any one day was 111.

The population of Philadelphia in 1793 was about 50,000.—In 1798, about 90,000.—Boston Centinel.

ATKINSON'S SATURDAY EVENING POST.

PHILADELPHIA:

Saturday, Sept. 8, 1832.

To Readers and Correspondents.

We beg to remind agents and subscribers who remit money to this office that GENUINE BANK NOTES are not received, on any terms, by the brokers of this city; consequently any forwarded on account of subscriptions must be returned.

A "CHRISTIAN SUBSCRIBER" should have seen the article he desires published at an earlier day; it is now too late to give it place.

"REFLECTIONS," by W. T. T. are inadmissible.

The author of "JOVIUS SEASON" may rest perfectly satisfied of our intention to suppress his article. It is very rarely that we have three or four columns of our paper "to spare" for such a purpose.

"THE GLORY OF COLUMBIA" has many faults, conspicuous among which is its length. We decline its insertion.

The articles by TIRO—"Tyro," we presume is intended—are unworthy of publication.

The poetical squib by "NON VIX," is faulty in style and objectionable in sentiment. Defects of the mind, under peculiar circumstances, may be allowed as legitimate subjects of satire, but defects of the person never. Lampoons upon the female sex are especially degrading.

"THE POET'S GRAVE" gives evidence of a degree of talent, but the article suffers much when compared with standard poetry. If it be a first attempt the author has no cause for disappointment in our refusal to give it place.

OSCAR is welcome.

ORTHAN writes with a strong wrist, but a weak pen; his thoughts are passable, though unpoetic, but his language is flimsy and incorrect.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The Directors of the second section, First School District of Pennsylvania, resolved at a stated meeting held on Monday last, to reopen their Schoolhouse in Third above Brown street, for the readmission of their pupils, on Monday, 17th inst. The School for colored children, belonging to this section, and located in Charlotte street, will be opened at the same time.

The Sanitary Committee have just published, in pamphlet form, the Report of the Physicians appointed by them to visit Canada, for the investigation of the nature and best mode of treating the epidemic Cholera. It occupies about forty octavo pages, and will no doubt be read with interest by the Medical Faculty, and the public generally.

SHADE TREES VILLAINY.—Some graceless scoundrel has nearly destroyed several of the beautiful Linden trees, which adorn the walk in front of the State House, by cutting them with an "axe." Such an act of wanton mischief is difficult to account for. The perpetrator deserves for this single act, a permanent location in the penitentiary. The Mayor of the city has offered a reward of fifty dollars for his apprehension, and protection to conviction.

SITUATION OF THE SOUTH.

The fact that our country is rapidly approaching an eventful crisis, seems to become every day more evident. The Hotspurs of the South, reckless of all consequences, appear determined to undermine our constitution, and shatter and prostrate our union.—Some of the leading papers of South Carolina have boldly entered the lists with Nullification at their must head, and intemperate appeals, indicative of gross infatuation on the part of the writers, are daily made to the people.

The fair and liberal concessions made by the friends of the Protective System, at the last session of Congress, and the disposition manifested by the manufacturers of the North to concede every reasonable request, have had not the slightest effect in suppressing the spirit of insurrection which has been raised.—The idea of concession is hooted and spurned, and it is exultingly avowed that nothing short of an entire prostration of northern interests, will meet the views of the cotton planters. Among those who take this decisive stand are Vice President Calhoun, Mr. Clayton, Judge Smith, and a few other leading men, and it is not to be denied that their influence has mainly contributed to sow these seeds of discord and strife. On them be the responsibility!

A writer in a late number of the Southern Times, occupies two columns in that paper, in endeavoring to inflame the minds of the people of South Carolina, and prepare them for the contingencies which threaten the state. We extract the following, as a specimen of his logic—

"You are taxed in your industry, your amusements, in the education of your children, and in fact on almost every necessary of life; to an extent unprecedented in the annals of tyranny. Your once flourishing commerce is annihilated, your cities depopulated, and your country fast verging to bankruptcy and beggary. And the humiliating—the degrading truth cannot—need not be denied, that our sovereignty is lost, and your heaven-born right to self-government derided and ridiculed, and that you are now in fact in a state of colonial vassalage."

* * * * * *

"It may, we repeat, be asserted without dread of refutation, that to preserve the Union is to continue the tyranny of your oppressors, and to rivet the chains of slavery. The present is not a time for cold, temporising policy. All disguise should be thrown off, patriotism (as in the days that tried men's souls) should speak in a voice of thunder to the affrighted ears of Tyranny—THIS UNION MUST BE DISSOLVED."

* * * * * *

"Carolinians! In three days chivalric France effected one of the most important Revolutions. Less than three days are sufficient for you to effect all your desires. Let the people rise in their sovereignty and speak the fiat, "We will be free," and like Milton's Angel that fell from the battlements of heaven, the many headed monster which, with insatiate thirst and sanguine jaws, feeds upon the life blood of the South, will fall from its boasted height into the abyss of infamy, and the chains which it has ingeniously forged for you and your children, will fall at your feet accursed. Be prompt! be decisive, and your victory is won without a struggle."

Such is the reckless depravity which characterises some of the nullifiers—a depravity and an ignorance which regards as reasonable the right of one state to arrest the action of the General Government—and a depravity which would wade through fire and blood, in pursuit of an idle theory of a distempered brain.

In a later number of the same paper we find an editorial article setting forth the modus operandi of Nullification. The plan proposed is for the legislature of South Carolina, at its next session, to call a convention for the purpose of altering the constitution of the State. Thus convention shall clothe the legislature with power to enact statutes and laws establishing, in unequivocal form, the doctrine of State Rights. The succeeding legislature will then be enabled to pursue nullification without difficulty. They will impose heavy penalties upon all concerned in collecting the duties of the Federal Government, and give the individual whose property may be seized by the Revenue officers for the payment of duties levied upon it, the right to the recovery of the property by civil process.

The issue being fairly made up between South Carolina and the General Government, the editor commences speculating upon the probable result. Gen. Jackson may, he admits, declare South Carolina in a state of insurrection, and station frigates off Charleston and Savannah, as well as scour the shores with cutters, but, he rather supposes, he will avoid venturing on so hazardous a step, and refer the matter to Congress. It will then be for that body to determine, either to compel the disaffected States to secede, or to coerce them to submission.

Congress will not insist upon a secession, because, according to the Nullifying editor, "the North would be ruined by such a measure." Their manufactories would be levelled to the dust; their navigating interest would disappear from the ocean, as every port in Europe would be closed to their vessels; their political distinction would be lost, and "perpetual odium would be entailed upon the third and fourth generation of their descendants." Neither will Congress be disposed to coerce the South, because, in that case, the disaffected States will declare themselves independent, and form treaties with France, Great Britain, and the other powers of Europe—in which case the North must be utterly annihilated!

"It is evident then,"—continues the writer,—"the voice of Congress would speak concession. They would annul the Protecting System—reduce the tariff to the revenue standard—and be taught by the lessons of experience to refrain, at least for a season, from the violation of Southern rights."

This, in the South, may be considered a well wrought theory, with irresistible conclusions, but here it is regarded as heresy and rank nonsense. Every position taken in relation to the conduct of the Federal Government, we have no hesitation in believing decidedly incorrect. When the spirit of rebellion is so far ripened as to come in collision with constitutional laws, the face of things will be materially changed, and though the consequences may be appalling, they who suffer will be compelled to say—"Our own perverseness has brought this desolation upon upon us."

The duel which was fought on the 16th ult. on the Georgia line, by Turner Byaum, Esq. Editor of the Sentinel, and Mr. Perry, Editor of the Greenville Mountaineer, terminated fatally to the former at the first fire. Mr. Byaum was a young man, who had acquired the respect and esteem of a numerous circle of acquaintances. The vest and coat of Mr. Perry were cut by the ball of his antagonist, but he escaped uninjured.

A reward of One Hundred Dollars, is offered by the Wilkesbarre Fire Company, for the detection to conviction, of the person or persons who maliciously cut the Hose, belonging to the company. Several sections, it is stated, were rendered entirely unfit for service.

STRICTURES ON AMERICA.

Among a number of new works recently published by Carey & Lea, is an octavo of 325 pages, entitled "Remarks on the statistical and political institutions of the United States, with some observations on the ecclesiastical system of America, her sources of revenue, &c. To which are added Statistical Tables, &c.—By Wm. G. Ouseley, Esq. Attachee to his Majesty's Legation at Washington."

This work is distinguished by sentiments and reflections which differ materially from those advanced by Basil Hall and Mrs. Trollope, in their recently published volumes on the institutions and domestic manners of Americans. The author, though an Englishman, and in the employ of the British Government, treats of America in the style of a gentleman of acute discernment, liberal views and correct judgment. He examines our institutions, our principles and form of government, our resources, prospects, &c. evidently with a design to present to his countrymen a fair and impartial picture of this country, and so far as his observation extended, his efforts have been attended with tolerable success. Some allowance for error should always be made to authors treating of a foreign country, and this common justice requires where the writer manifests a disposition to be honorable and candid. Forbearance towards such as Capt. Hall and Madame Trollope is, however, not to be expected, as the sole motive of such authors is to vilify, and vent their illnatured and uncharitable abuse. Of both these writers Mr. Ouseley speaks with his usual openness. The former he unhesitatingly alleges, was governed upon his arrival in America, by a strong political bias—a powerful feeling of prejudice, which continually interfered with the exercise of his judgment, when drawing inferences from what he saw. To a material defect in the principles of the authoress, and to her exclusion from good American society, Mr. O. ascribes the vulgarities and carricatures which distinguish her "Domestic Manners." In reference to her high colored statements, he says—"To estimate the fidelity of the writer's satire, as a picture of American society in the United States, let us imagine an American, or any other foreigner, coming to England, and 'locating' himself in the fens of Linconshire, or in some remote village of Lancashire or Yorkshire, and giving the language, tone and manners of the society that he might find there as a fair specimen of good company in England; or lodging at Wapping, and giving the 'vells' and 'vats,' the 'osses' and 'humages,' of some of the cockney writers, as a fair sample of London manners! He might even add, 'I give this as a specimen of the greater part of the community,' with literal truth, as doubtless, numerically, the major part of the inhabitants of the metropolis do not distinguish themselves as puristes in language; but would it be strictly fair to convey such an expression of the general manners of England, as a faithful picture were intended?"

The chapter devoted to an examination and review of Mrs. Trollope's absurdities is highly interesting.—The conclusion is thus:—

"Americans may well be excused if their patience is somewhat taxed by the short-sighted and captious criticisms that are sometimes uttered by foreigners upon their country, their government, or their manners. I look at that immense tract of country west of the Alleghanies, that a very few years ago was comparatively a wild forest, where many millions of acres were thinly occupied by a few thousand inhabitants, and see a population already greater than that of several independent kingdoms, daily increasing in numbers and adding to their comforts; where cities and towns spring up as if by magic from among the woods; its plains traversed by rail-roads and its gigantic rivers covered with steam-boats. I see all this going on without tumult, bloodshed, or disorder; and when I exclaim, 'this is a noble, an extraordinary country!' I am answered in Abigail phrase—'but, shocking, the people eat with their knives!'"

Mr. Ouseley notices the conflicting opinions of English authors in regard to America, and the misconceptions of many foreigners in regard to the real character of Americans. He adds:—

"Americans are eminently practical men; all their undertakings, and generally all the measures, whether of governments or individuals in that country, are stamped with utility as their object, and dictated by sound practical good sense and prudence. They consequently quickly detect the wildness and absurdity of many of the republican theories of those Europeans, who would seek to adopt forms of government totally unfitted for the circumstances of their country;—and soon adapt their views to the peculiarities of the political atmosphere in which they find themselves."

The author devotes the second and third chapters to an examination of the objections made against Republics in general, and to a special review of the alleged tendencies of that of America. Upon this point his views are eminently distinguished by candor and liberality. Though not prepared to say that the laws and institutions of America are applicable to the present situation of affairs in Great Britain, he is far from concluding, as other authors have done, that the instability of our government is thence to be inferred. Of our penal code, he says—

"Instead of sanguinary executions and injustice, we find in America a penal code singularly mild, and cautious to an extreme in taking away human existence; a system of punishment framed with a view to the prevention of crime, and not in a vindictive spirit; and adapted for the reclamation of the criminal rather than for his destruction. Instead of spoliation or pillage, we see no country in which the possession and disposal of property are better protected, or its acquisition by judicious industry better assured. And above all, there is no country in which religion and its ministers are more generally respected and supported by the mass of the population, although without compulsory provision, and where the lives and example of the clergy more nearly approach to those of their great primitive models."

The middle and latter parts of the volume are occupied with observations on the Judiciary of the United States, the financial and general prosperity of the country, a notice of the war and treasury departments, American statistics, military and naval expenses, ecclesiastical revenue, public lands, expenses of the administration of justice, and our general resources. From each of these chapters we should be pleased to furnish extracts, but our limits will not at present permit us this gratification.

Annexed is an appendix, embracing a variety of interesting tables, statistics, &c.

*"We had abundant ocular demonstration of the respect paid to the subject of religion;—scarcely a village, however small, without a church,' &c.—Vide Capt. R. Hall's Travels in the United States, Vol. I. p. 151, and elsewhere.

"With regard to the accounts lately published by a female traveller in America, if we were even to allow that they are faithful descriptions, and not satirical caricatures, it would be short no fair to estimate the church system of England by the proceedings of a meeting of Jumpers or Ranters in some remote village, or by the hallucinations of the followers of Joanna Southcote, as to judge of the ministers and followers of different denominations in America by the representations of Mrs. Trollope."

Complaints have been made by some of our aged readers, of the smallness of a portion of our print; which they have found it difficult to peruse without inconvenience to the eyes. This difficulty we have now obviated by procuring a new font of handsome Minion, nearly as small as our late Nonpareil, but as plain and conspicuous as Brevier. We have introduced it into our columns this week. By the new arrangement we are enabled to give more reading matter than usual.

SWINDLING ESTABLISHMENTS.—The detection of villainy in the management of the affairs of petty Banks, should teach us to be cautious of the confidence we place in such institutions. Every year the community is cheated by one or more of these swindling concerns, and yet no effort is made to arrest the progress of the pernicious system. The Fayetteville (N. C.) Observer, of the 24th ult. in relation to this matter, says:

"It is believed, that the affairs of the Bank of Macon, Georgia, have been fraudulently managed. It is asserted, that its agents were employed in the gold region of North Carolina buying up gold at more than its real value, and paying for it in Macon Bank Bills; that in this way large amount of its notes were forced into circulation in the western counties of this state, and that much distress has been produced by its failure. It is said, that from 20 to 30,000 dollars of its notes were held in the counties of Burke and Buncombe alone, and large amounts in other counties. The Bank is expected to pay from 20 to 25 cents on the dollar.

Does any one need a better argument in favor of the United States Bank than the failure of such an institution as this, and the loss to the farmers, the merchants, and the mechanics, of between 2 and 300,000 dollars? Destroy the United States Bank, and we shall have abundance of these mushroom Banks, ready to play off the same game as the Macon Bank, and to the loss of the same honest classes as have been cheated by that.

THEATRICAL

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—This establishment, which during the recess has been repainted and embellished with new decorations, was opened for the season on Wednesday. The stock company, with a few exceptions, is the same as it was last season. The entertainments selected for the first evening were Coleman's comedy of the "PIQUE GENTLEMAN," and the farce of "HOW TO DIE FOR LOVE." Mr. Jones as Sir Robert Bramble in the comedy, was highly diverting, and sustained his part with his usual ability.—Mr. Duffy as Dr. Ollapod, and Mr. Forrest as Frederick Bramble, performed with decided spirit, and greatly to the satisfaction of the audience. Mr. Murdock, who appeared as Sir Charles Cropland, was warmly received; his appearance is much improved. Mr. J. Greene, from the New York Theatres, appeared as Humphrey Dobbins, and by his quaintness, drew down immense applause; he will be a valuable addition to the corps. Mrs. Manager Jones appeared as Miss Loretia Mac Tabb. She has lost none of her invaluable superiority in personating such characters. The interesting Miss Riddle ably sustained the part of Emily Worthington. We are glad to perceive that this lady is retained in the company. With a few exceptions in the minor points, the comedy was well performed.

On Thursday evening, Mrs. M'Clure, a lady of high celebrity in the western theatres, appeared in the part of Miss Hardcastle, in She Stoops to Conquer. On Friday, the veteran Cooper commenced a short engagement as Mr. Beverly in the Gamester.

Mr. Hackett is announced to appear shortly.

A number of novelties are in active preparation, under the direction of the zealous managers, who we have no doubt will be indefatigable in their exertions to give general satisfaction. Success attend them.

CHESNUT STREET THEATRE.—This house will be reopened for the season this evening, under the management of Messrs. Maywood, Rowbotham & Pratt.—During the recess the appearance of the interior has been much improved, and extensive arrangements have been entered into for bringing out a constant succession of attractive novelties. The grand military spectacle of Napoleon will be performed this evening. For Monday, the opera of Masaniello is announced; Mr. Sinclair as Masaniello, and Madame Feron as Fenella, two vocalists whose merits are too well known to render eulogium necessary.

Among the stock actors we are pleased to perceive the names of Messrs. Rowbotham, Wood, Maywood, Roberts, Rice, Mrs. Rowbotham, Mrs. Maywood and others, who constitute of themselves a brilliant galaxy of talent. In the course of the season Mr. J. Wallack, the fascinating Miss Vincent, Mr. Kemble, Miss Fanny Kemble, Master Burke and Mrs. Austin, will appear in succession. The campaign will no doubt prove prosperous to the managers, and gratifying to the public.

DRAMATIC ITEMS.

Mr. Charles Kemble and his daughter Miss Kemble arrived at New York from Europe, in the packet ship Pacific. They will shortly appear at the Park theatre.

Mr. H. Wallack is playing at the New-York Bowery, and Mr. J. Wallack at the Park. Both personate the character of Rolla on Tuesday evening. The latter was kindly received by a full house.

A new drama is in preparation at the Bowery, entitled "Old Jonathan and his Apprentices."

The Italian Troup have engaged the Richmond Hill Theatre, until the 1st of January next. They will open the house in the course of the present month.

Mr. Woodhull, an actor of merit, and late manager of Richmond Hill Theatre, died in New York on Friday of last week.

Miss Courtney, from the London theatres, made her first appearance at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, on Friday week. She performed Lady Teazle. She is well spoken of by the Boston critics.

A new tragedy, called GIOVANNI, written by James Lawson, Esq. of New York, is in rehearsal at the Arch street theatre.

The New York American complaments Miss Fanny Kemble, "as probably at this moment the most interesting woman living."

Mr. Blake, Miss Duff and Mrs. Asbury, on their way to Halifax, gave a dramatic and musical entertainment at Hallowell, on the 31st ult.

Talking is one thing and doing is another; the man who is always talking can have no time to act.

AMBITIOUS.—The description of the propagation of the Cholera by miasmatic, appears daily to gain ground. A writer in the Chautauque (N. Y.) Republican, of the 30th ult. notices a remarkable phenomenon which occurred in that village, on the day previous. Immediately after a heavy fall of rain, there was observed on the stoves, door-sills, and steps of houses facing the south east, from which point the storm had proceeded, a mucilaginous matter, of a light color, not ropy, but of free jelly, apparently having fell in large drops and spread. As this slime or matter began to congeal, there were observed in it specks of a dark-ish color, resembling in substance curdles in sap or wine, and some persons who examined them, imagined they could discover in them live insects.

FOREIGN NEWS.—In another part of this paper, we give copious extracts from foreign papers, received by the latest packets. The principal topics of interest which the reader will find detailed, are the death of the Duke de Reichstadt, the son of Bonaparte—the defeat of Don Miguel's army by the forces of Don Pedro—the prospect of a war between Holland and Belgium, and the critical situation of Sir Walter Scott, considering whom much feeling is expressed by this community.

LEGISLATION.—A proposition is before the British Parliament, to abolish the punishment of death in all crimes relating to property only. The present penal code of England inflicts the punishment of death upon forgery, highwaymen, horse-stealers, &c.

ANDERSON THE PLAYER.—The vocalist, who for his insolence was obliged to return to England, has published in the London Morning Chronicle, a long defence of his conduct, in which he bears particularly hard upon the whole tribe of Americans. The cause of the dispute between Lee and himself, he represents as being the insolence of Lee to Mrs. Anderson. Lee refused to answer a challenge to fight, and was posted on shipboard as a "coward." Hence arose his bitter persecution of Anderson. In reference to his reception at New York, he says—"They pelted me with open penknives, glass bottles, lemons, crusts, hooks and eyes, large pieces of wood, rotten eggs, chesnuts, door-keys, and ladies' combs." At Boston, to save his life, he was compelled to make his escape over the roof of the theatre, and in dropping to the street, he was caught by a friendly projecting hook, and there hung in the same state of classic suspension as the Prophet's tomb, and came off somewhat like poor Nichol Jarvie, minus a shirt. In Baltimore, though Mrs. Anderson's reception was friendly, he met with many annoyances. Mrs. A. was illvexed by Mr. Walton, an Englishman, manager of the Baltimore theatre; and he believing his troubles would never end while in "rascally America," concluded to sail home. He took notes, as he travelled, and these it is his intention shortly to publish. They will present rather a scurvy picture of the inhabitants of the "inhospitable states."

EPITOME OF THE TIMES.

We understand that Mr. Hugh Hatch, of Camden, N. J. brought to the Philadelphia market on Wednesday, a lot of unusually fine peaches, which sold for 12½ cents each, or $1.50 per half peck; twelve peaches filling the half peck measure.

The annual election for the choice of Governor and members of the State Legislature in Maine, takes place on Monday next.

Thomas Hale, Esq. was elected President of the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, in place of Andrew Bayard, Esq. deceased.

The store and lot No. 211 Market street, between Fifth and Sixth (the lot 18 feet front and 110 deep,) subject to a ground rent of $60, was sold by Messrs. Freeman & Hutchinson, at the Merchants' Coffee House, for eighteen thousand two hundred dollars.

A friend of ours, who travelled, not long since, through a great portion of our Western Country, notices a peculiar custom which has escaped Captain Hall and Mrs. Trollope. You frequently see, he says, men without shoes or stockings, shivering their heads from the sun by an umbrella; a sure proof that our countrymen in that region, know which is the chief and of the human body.

A gentleman of this city made an experiment in his vault, to try the purifying effect of the dust of charcoal. It succeeded beyond his anticipation, and entirely disinfected the vault of nauseous exhalations, without leaving any of that unpleasant odor that characterises the chloride of lime. The experiment is well worth trying by all persons who relish a sweet atmosphere about their establishments.

We are pleased to learn that the much admired picture of La Belle Nature, which has recently been on a visit to Baltimore, where it has entranced numerous admiring visitors, is once more offered to public view in South Fourth street, second building from the corner of Chesnut. It is certainly a production of established merit, highly deserving the many encomiums passed upon it in this and other principal cities of the Union.

The Bainville (Pa.) Record of the 30th of August, announces the arrivals of eastern redeals at the "Port of Bainville," in the week preceding; among them the Commodore Perry, Capt. Findley, from India, with 20 tons of Fig metal.

The schooner Charles Austin, from Camden, Me. bound to New York, was run into on Tuesday night, by a square rigged vessel, and almost instantly sunk. The crew escaped by taking to the boat.

Two persons, one named Woods, the other McLaughlin, were accidently killed, on Friday of last week, near Meadville, Pa. by the falling of a tree, about which they had been working.

A carpenter named Philip Wing, fell from a house in Grafton, Mass. on the 16th inst. and was immediately killed.

Lewis Hottenberger and John Nash, were arrested in Baltimore, on Saturday last, in the act of robbing the Dry Goods Store of Messrs. Watkins & Co.

On Tuesday, the 21st ult. Mr. Nathan Epworth, of Bainbridge, Lancaster county, was accidentally precipitated over a ledge of rocks eighteen feet high, and instantly killed.

James J. Ryan's Dry Goods Store, No. 151 Chatham street, New York, was destroyed by fire on Monday last.

The Secretary of the Treasury offers a premium of $200 for the best plan of a bridge across the Potomac.

The St. Louis, Mo. people tendered a public dinner to Brig. Gen. Atkinson, in honor of his late victory over a few straggling Indians. It was declined.

One of the philanthropic sisters of charity, who so kindly volunteered as nurses during the prevalence of the Cholera at Baltimore, has, we learn with deep regret, fallen a victim to the pestilence.

There was frost in the vicinity of Albany on the mornings of the 24th and 25th ult. The Kingston U. C. Chronicle of the 25th says:—"The oldest resident in this country does not remember to have experienced, at this season of the year, any thing equal to the cold of last night; it actually froze, and from hand. A slight coating of ice was seen on the bay at an early hour."

The New York Courier & Enquirer of Monday week, announces that it has lost 459 subscribers since its change of politics, and gained 466.—Net increase seven.

BARBACUE EXTRAORDINARY.—At a recent barbecue in Union District, S. C. among other things served up to gratify the palates of the party present, were four hundred and twenty-five grey squirrels.

The democratic delegation of Philadelphia county on Wednesday last nominated JOSEPH RITNER, of Washington county, for Governor, and Col. John G. Watmough, as a candidate for congress, from the Third Congressional District.

A New Hampshire Journal mentions that a person named David S. Young, of Gilmanton, recently moved an acre of grass, in one hour and three minutes.—On taking up the hay there was found to be over a ton upon the acre.

NOVEL CURE FOR THE CHOLERA.—Professor Oertel, of Germany, has published a pamphlet dedicated to the King of Prussia, in which he announces the most successful remedy for the Cholera to be cold water, plentifully applied both inwardly and outwardly.

A letter from Robert Dale Owen, published in the Free Enquirer, confirms the intelligence of the marriage of Frances Wright. He mentions the fair bride as Madame Darusmont.

The number of interments from Cholera in Quebec, from the commencement of the disease on the 8th June to the 18th August, were 2,030.

The sale of water melons, musk melons, and cantelopes, is prohibited in Hartford, Connecticut, under a penalty not exceeding $100.

Killed by lightning on the 7th ult. eight head of cattle, the property of Mr. Leman Stone, of New Milford. When found they were all lying in a direct line, the first being about six rods from the farthest, and the others filling up the intermediate space equidistant from each other. One of them was shocking, ly mangled, but on the rest scarce any mark was visible. They were near a tree, which, it seems, the electric fluid first descended.

The Life Insurance Company in Baltimore has issued more policies during the present month than in any three months since its operations commenced.

Bela's Comet, according to the calculations of astronomers, is now in the immediate neighborhood of our system, and will soon be visible, if it is not already. It will be nearest the earth on the 23d of October, distant about 51,000,000 miles. In will appear brightest about the 13th November. Its apparent course for a month to come, will be nearly due West. Its last periodical return was in 1826.

Two persons were playing cards in a barn, in Middletown, Dauphin co., on Saturday, when they quarrelled and fought concerning the stake, 12½ cents, and one killed the other. The offender has been secured and lodged in the Harrisburg jail. An inquest was held over the body of the deceased, whose name was Joseph Sanford, and a verdict of murder returned against the survivor.

The Charleston Patriot says, that a slave who was the husband and property of a free colored woman, was recently tried and executed for having wounded two white men.

CENTENARIES.—According to the census of June, 1830, there were at that time living in the United States, 2079 persons, more than 100 years of age.

Messrs. Childs & Inman have issued a lithographic likeness of the Hon. William Wirt, done in Newman's best style. The drawing is good, and we are told the resemblance is striking. The artists have just completed a diploma for a society, which contains the best specimen of writing that we have ever seen lithographed.

We have before us the Tampico Gazette of the 20th July, and have examined the file for that month. The Mexican Union preserves still a melancholy picture of political discord and civil war—it is difficult, moreover, to find grounds of hope for any period of futurity.

SCURVY INFORMATION.—A challenge has been offered by James B. Richardson, Esq. to run Bertram, jr. and Little Venus against Andrew and Bonsette of Blue, four miles heat, carrying one hundred pounds for each, for Five Thousand Dollars aside, each race half forfeit. The race to be run over the Washington Course in Charleston on the Monday and Tuesday week, preceding the first day of the annual races at that place.

Two watchmen in Baltimore succeeded on Saturday morning, in arresting a pair of thieves, who had broken into a dry goods store. They were fortunate enough, likewise, to secure the merchandise, about a thousand dollars' worth, which the rogues had carried off and concealed.

MECHANICS' BANK IN PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Counterfeit five dollar notes on this bank have lately been put in circulation. They are dated September 3d, 1830, and made payable to S. B. Wood.

The forthcoming edition of the CRACKER DICTIONARY, we understand, will contain the following definition, of Nullification:

"Nullification.—The abstract idea of the little end of the tail of nothing."

The whole number of cases of cholera, reported by the Board of Health of the city of New York, including Harlem, Yorkville, &c. since the commencement of the disease, July 3, to Aug. 29, were 5,792, and 2,166 deaths. The City Inspector, during the same period, has reported 2,841 interments of the same disease.

A most painful circumstance took place at Chaplin, Con. on Monday of last week. A child, the son of Mr. James Utley, aged about 3 years, while at play near the house, was almost instantly killed by the fall of an ox-cart body, which was standing erect against the wall. The child, in endeavoring to climb the cart, started it from its position, and caused the melancholy accident. Its head was literally crushed.

At the commencement of Harvard University, on Wednesday, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Washington Irving, of New York, and Jonathan Sewell of Lower Canada. Sixty-seven young men were admitted to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

More than two hundred citizens of Quebec and its neighborhood have addressed a letter to Dr. Stephen Ayres, thanking him in the warmest manner for his humane and efficient exertions in "saving the lives of so many of them," at a time when the Cholera raged there in its utmost violence.

A black fellow named John Ayres, a convict in the Eastern Penitentiary, attempted suicide by hanging himself, on Wednesday morning last. He effected his purpose by tying a band of cotton yarn around his throat, attaching it to one of the bars of the door, and then drawing up his feet until dead. He was confined for the murder of the overseer of the almshouse of Montgomery county, committed in a fit of supposed insanity.

Gen. Hayne has entered the lists in the Charleston papers, against Col. Drayton. They have warm work of it in South Carolina. The papers teem with discussions of the Tariff and of Nullification. Now and then they have a personal recontre, by way of variety.

A Correspondent of the National Intelligencer can not, at present, be gratified. He has appeared in Washington and Georgetown, and has not yet visited Alexandria. All in good time. But the epidemic is in fact inscrutable—what it is, whence or why it comes, or even when; how or why or when it goes, no man has yet discovered.

The Farmington, (Me.) Yeoman says, the town of Strong was visited by a snow storm on Saturday the 25th of August.

The Mackerel Fishery of the town of Hingham has been less than one quarter as great as last year.—In 1831 there were packed 23,304 bbls.; in 1832 only 5,465—Less this year 17, 839 barrels.

The body of a female, supposed to have been murdered, was found last week in Mystic river, Mass.

SNOW ON THE 26TH OF AUGUST.—The Portland Courier of Monday says—"The White Mountains were yesterday covered with snow. They were distinctly seen from the Observatory in this city, and from the appearance the snow must have been several inches deep. The weather here for two or three days has been uncommonly cold for the season."

DOUBLE LOOPED STOCKINET

SHIRTS AND DRAWERS,

☞A new article of a superior quality.☜

JOSEPH HIBBERT, No. 8 Cedar Avenue, on the east side of St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia,—Respectfully informs the public that he has commenced the manufacture of Cotton, Worsted and Woollen Shirts and Drawers, which possess many advantages in neatness, elasticity and durability, over those manufactured in the usual way. The advertiser feels confident that all who purchase, will give the articles a decided preference.

J. Hibbert intends keeping constantly on hand a quantity of shirts and drawers, made of different threads; and he intends to prepare for the spring and summer, a variety of cotton, wool and silk, for shirts and drawers.

☞ N. B. Stockings made to order, on the shortest notice.

Belts or Girths, also on hand.

aug 11—tf

Tin Ware Manufactory,

NO. 69 North Second Street, opposite Poor street, Philadelphia, 2d door north of Poor street.

William H. Fowler, being thankful for past favors, respectfully solicits a continuance of the patronage of his friends, that he has removed from his old stand, corner of Willow and Second streets, to the above place, where he will be happy, by strict attention, to merit a share of public patronage.

N. B. Gutters, house pipe, copper, tin, and sheet iron roofing, done in the best manner, and on the most reasonable terms.

aug 8—7t*

Mineral Water.

LANING & LUKENS, No. 116 North Fifth street, have prepared mineral water, with J. H. Lansing's Patent Apparatus, this season only and from the reputation it has already and will continue to maintain, we wish those who are furnished by us, and those who make mineral water with this machine, not to confer the reputation which we, or the machine is entitled to, to any other person by stating to the public, that the water is made by any other person, or by any other mineral art, or magic, but that of J. H. Lansing's simple and improved apparatus.

"Now in order to prevent further fraud, and imposition on the public," and that those who may wish to be furnished next year, or purchase an apparatus, may have an opportunity of testing and judging for themselves,—We publish the following certificate, signed by a few respectable druggists, who are now furnished by us, or vending mineral water, made with J. H. Lansing's Patent Apparatus.

We, the subscribers, from what we have seen and experienced, respecting J. H. Lansing's Portable Mineral Water Apparatus, are decidedly of the opinion, the water prepared with it, is pure, fully equal to any prepared in the old laborious way with a pump, and of any difference, it is undoubtedly in favor of the new process.

Dr. Robert Moore, ... corner of Fifth and Race street.
Edward Neville, ... corner of Twelfth and Race st.
David Schaffer, ... corner of Fourth and South st.
Edward Hopper, ... No. 252 North Third street.
Edward F. Wilcox, ... corner of John & Coats' street.
Samuel R. Dale, ... corner of 13th & Wood street.
Robert Flint, ... Race near Seventh street.
Harlan & Siddall, ... corner of Fifth and Minor street.
R. Jordan, ... corner of 2nd and Christian st.
Dr. W. Merle-Smith, ... Green street, Kensington.

Sens 8—3t*

Eastern District of Pennsylvania, to wit:

Be it Remembered, That on the twenty third day of July, Anno Domini, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two, SAMUEL C. ATKINSON, of the said District, left deposited in this office the Title of a Book, the title of which is in the words following, to wit:

A Catechism of American Law. Adapted to popular Use.

The right whereof he claims as Proprietor, in conformity with an Act of Congress, entitled, "An Act to amend the several Acts respecting Copy-rights."

FRAS. HOPKINSON,
Clerk of the District.

aug 8—tf

Removal.

CHARLES MAGARGE has removed, for the present, from C. No. 11 Minor street, to No. 200 North Third street, up stairs.

aug 8—3t

Dyspepsia.

C. JOY invites the attention of all persons who are troubled with dyspepsia or indigestion, to a medicine which has perfectly cured more than six hundred persons who have taken it, within the last fifteen months; many more have taken it, to whom it has afforded important relief, although it may not have entirely eradicated the disease. It is called Joy's Ale Dyspepsia Elixir, and is prepared by him only at his office, No. 208 North Fifth street, Philadelphia, the fifth door below Race, on the east side. Price 2 dollars per bottle. One bottle, in most cases being sufficient to cure, which makes it cheaper than any other preparation for that disease, ever offered to the public. None genuine without his signature and seal attached to the bottle, with accompanying pamphlet.

To all those who prefer putting themselves under his care during one week, and who will be governed by his directions in regard to medicine, diet and exercise, if, at the expiration of the week, they have not received important benefit, he pledges himself to refund their money. ☞Certificates and references in possession of high respectable persons who have used the Elixir, to many to any person shall require, are offered.

aug 11—3t

The Hon. WILLIAM H. MARYARD, member of the New York State Senate, died in the city of N. York on Saturday night, of the Cholera.

ALMANAC.

1832. SEPTEMBER.	SUN RISES.	SUN SETS.	HIGH WATER	MOON'S PHASES.
8 SATURDAY,	5 41	6 19	9 44
9 SUNDAY,	5 43	6 17	1 31	D. S. H.
10 MONDAY,	5 44	6 16	2 17
11 TUESDAY,	5 45

All things abound with fool; nothing that's plain
But may be wilty, if thou feed the vain.

TO MY DOG JOWLER.

Jowler, they've tax'd you, honest friend,
Rather if you, yet yo in the roll,
To exile every dog they'll send,
Unless some fool will pay his poll.

By all that's good! the rascals mean,
Twoon me and thee to breed a strife,
To drive you into banishment,
Or bribe your friend to take your life.

But, Jowler! don't you be alarm'd,
If politicians do neglect you,
For all their tax pe shan't be horse'd,—
I love, and honor, and respect yo.

But taxes, says the commission,
Yoour the right to represent,
So, hope, by this mere resolution,
May just as well as dog be sent.

Now, dogs and men, and women, hear,
That Jowler's put in nomination,
To yo upon the coming year,
And aid in public legislation.

Jowler, stand clear of demagogues,
Some cheat of a dog's country,
Take care to mind of other dogs,
And vote with the majority.

Mr. Fox—The celebrated orator, was one day told by a lady, whom he visited, that she "had not once thrown ships of a house for him." He immediately took out his pencil and wrote the following lines:—

A Lady has told me, and in her own house,
That she never met her man "throw ships of a house."
I forgive the deep shamme for what she has said,
Since women will talk of what never is seen.

Historical Evening.—On a resolution, in the eastern part of Massachusetts, in the following epitaph: [W]

To the memory of Johnny and Molly Malone,
A whale killed him; and so has he.

Caution.—The manager of one of the Theatres at Vienna yielded to the solicitation and importunity of court friends, and permitted a young lady to make her debut as a singer, who had the mortification to be hissed off. Not a little annoyed, the manager ordered her hastily before the curtain and addressed the audience in a stentorian voice with this brief question—"Ladies and Gentlemen, don't you like her?" "No!" was the reply from all parts of the house. "Neither do I," added the manager, and disappeared amidst roars of laughter.

La Serenadule.—An old story is told of a certain lady, moving in the circles of the highest ton, her residence fronting on the gardengate of a great mansion, under the plea that, as she was a near neighbor, she wished to enjoy the fresh morning air among the plants and flowers. In the morning, however, she was found in disturbed sleep near the dormitory of the Bachelor Peer, and she was obliged to confess that she was addicted to walking in her sleep!!!

Search after Wisdom.—In one of the imperial towns in Germany it is customary to address the Mayor as "Your Wisdom." A party who had consumed hour after hour in a bootless chace after the sapient functionary, having at last fallen in with him, very innocently hailed him, ejaculating, "I have been rummaging every nook and corner the whole day long, but deuce a bit could I find out your wisdom."

The Tithe System in Ireland—O'Connell.—The following is a spirited picture, by O'Connel, in a recent speech, of the manner in which the Irish Tithes are not paid. The enthusiastic patriotism which can thus still the impulse of avarice, and deaden the sense of interest, cannot but challenge the admiration and praise of a liberal people. It is highly characteristic of the warm hearted sons of Erin; and affords an admirable proof of the laudable, as well as the just, justice and oppression, of the system which sear grinds that noble people to the dust.

"Paddy," says the Parson, "you owe me 1*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*" "And what may it be for, your Riverence," says Pat. [laughter] "Tithes." "Arrah! this I suppose your Riverence gave me some value forenint I was born, for devil a bit have I ever seen since. [roars of laughter] But your Riverence, I suppose, had law for it? Have ye the law? [laughter], and I would not be after going to disobey it, but phase your Riverence, I have no money." [great laughter] "Ah, Pat, but you've a cow there." "Ay, your Riverence, that's the cow that gives food to Nory and the 14 children." "Well, Paddy, then I must distrain that cow." "If your honour has law for it, to be sure you will." Well, what does Paddy do? He changes the word "Tithes" upon her side, and the Parson can't find a soul to take the cow. So he gets a regiment and a half, by way of bonkers, [much laughter] fourteen or fifteen companions, with those amiable young gentlemen their officers at their head, who march seventeen or eighteen miles across the Bog of Allen to take this cow to Carlow; when they get there, they find a crowd assembled; the Parson rubs his hands with glee. "Plenty of customers for the cow," quoth he to himself. The cow is put up at 2*l.*—no bidder; 1*l.* no bidder; 10*s.*—5*s.*—6*d.*; 1*d.* [Cheers]—not a soul will bid, and back goes the cow to Nory and the fourteen children (continued cheers.) But the Irish Parsons, poor fellows, must not lose their Tithes, so they apply to the English Parliament for 60,000*l.*; and when they find they can't get the cow from Paddy, they make a milch cow of John Bull [hear, hear!] Let them look at the history of the Whigs. Let them resolve not to be humbugged, and return to parliament men who will take equal care of John Bull's purse and person as his friends in Ireland took care of Paddy Bull's cow.

Turkish Cannon.—In our ships and in our batteries we seldom use a heavier gun than a 42 pounder. No man of war carries any cannon of a larger calibre; but the Turks make use, on land, of even eight hundred pounders. When Sir J. Duckworth passed the Dardanelles to attack Constantinople, in 1807, his fleet was dreadfully shattered by those immense shot. The Royal George, of 110 guns, was nearly sunk by only one shot, which carried away her cut water; another cut the mainmast of the Windsor Castle nearly in two; a shot knocked two parts of the Thunderer into one; the Repulse, 74, had her wheel shot away and 24 men killed and wounded by a single shot, nor was the ship saved but by the most wonderful exertions. One of these guns was cast in brass in the reign of Amurat; the difficulty of charging it would not allow its being charged more than once; but as a Pacha once said, that single discharge would destroy almost a whole fleet of an enemy. The Baron de Tott, to the great terror of the Turks resolved to fire this gun. The shot weighed 1,100 lbs. and he loaded it with 330 lbs. of powder: he says, "I felt a shock like an earthquake, at the distance of eight hundred fathoms. I saw the ball divide into three pieces, and these fragments of a rock crossed the strait and rebounded on the mountains." The heaviest shot which struck our ships was of granite, and weiged 800 lbs. and was two feet two inches in diameter. One of these huge shot stove in the whole larboard bow of the Active; and having then crushed this immense mass of solid timber, the shot rolled aft and brought up abreast the main hatchway, the crew standing aghast at the singular spectacle.—United Service Journal.

Power of Imagination.—Whelpley, in his Triangle, on the authority of Erasmus, tells this story of seven men who went to take a ride one clear, fine day, with Poole.

As they were riding along the road, Poole, to make himself sport, looked up into the heavens, and suddenly crossing himself in pretended surprise, declared he saw in the sky a monstrous dragon with fiery horns, and his tail turned up in a circle. They all, very much astonished at the declaration, looked up, but saw nothing. "Can't you see it?" continued Poole, "It is there. You must certainly be blind. Amazing! How terrible it looks. Don't you see it yet? Oh! I never saw such a sight in all my life before. You certainly must see it." In short, after a while, one, a little more credulous than the rest, said, I think I do see it. Yes, yes—I see it plainly. At this another fancied he saw it. And, said Erasmus, some by force of imagination, others fearing that they should be thought less sharp-sighted than the rest, confessed they saw it; and they soon all came in without a dissenting voice. The next day a particular account of the prodigy was published in the papers, authenticated by the testimony of several credible men.

PAT DURKAN'S PIGEONS.
AN IRISH STORY.

Some years since, when the peace had provoked a partial index of our Gallic neighbors into Ireland, it happened that one arrived at Ballinasloe, and, as a matter of course, sojourned at Pat Durkan's. His first breakfast there had been discussed apparently much to his satisfaction, and it now only remained to select the materials for dinner from Pat's ample bill of fare, previous to an intended excursion to the neighboring islands. Pat was summoned: "Vat you have for dinniere?" demanded the Frenchman. "What haven't I, your honor," returned Pat; "why, there's roast an biled, an stewed an fried, an the murphies to the back iv that agin; an it's seldom the likes iv them crasses a Frinchman's mouzle in his own country," he added mentally. "Vat you have, manger?" quoth the Frenchman. "Arrah be aisy, your honor," rejoined Pat, "the divil resave the taste iv mangy mate is neither the same roof wid you, barrin the cold bitch, an she's neither here nor there in ating, you know." "Misericorde!" ejaculated Monsieur, somewhat discomposed, and not comprehending the intent of Pat's phraseology, "Manger, I say manger!" "You need not be calling a body names in gibberish, for all that," said Pat "an I'll take my Bible oath into the bargain, that the sorrow bit of mangy or measly mate's in under the same thatch wid you." "Diable!" cried Monsieur, nearly out of patience, "for dinniere, I say dinniere!" "Och, regarding the dinner, is it?" said Pat: "musha, sure I could your honor all about that long ago; we've roast, an biled, an stewed an fried; but if you want to know all the ins an outs iv the business, why here's the bill, an your honor may pick an choose for the mother iv that." Pat lugged out his bill of fare which had been prepared for the occasion by his better half, and the contents of which he was as utterly ignorant of as his guest before he had perused them. In fact, it is a matter of speculation, whether the sum total could, at any period, have been perused within a circuit of some miles; he placed it, however, before his guest. "Ros-bif" inquired the Frenchman, as his eye caught the first item. "Tuesday an' onest" thought Pat, "I'm dish'd now altogther entirely—roast beef your honor! troth, then, I would not recommend it; bekase you see it's long kill'd—long enough," he added mentally, "seeing as how bad luck to the taste iv a dead cow stared me in the face sinceould Molleen's leg lat Christmas." "Veal" rejoined Monsieur. "Nor that neither," said Pat; "it's only slink, your honor—slink indeed," he continued to himself, "for it's not dead yet." "Pigeons," enumerated the Frenchman, with the true nasal twang, and sumbling the final s. "Och, sure that's not in it," cried Pat; "what dickens does he mean at-all-at-all, wid his pushong?" "Pigeons," reiterated the guest. "Och, bother, your honor, sure it's not game your makin iv me," said Pat. "Pigeons," rejoined the Frenchman, raising his tone. "By the bokey, I have it," cried Pat, after a vehement scratching of his carroty pole—"an it's myself that can shoot your honor to a hair—the pusheens! Faith it is lucky I thought it it—whillelulu!" And he made his exit in a high glee with his successful interpretation. It happened that upon this identical morning Pat's domestic cat had achieved her accouchement; the event of which had been an increase of his family to the extent of five fine, thriving, comely kittens, or pusheens, as Pat would term them in his native parlance. One of those was, in accordance, as he imagined, with his guest's directions, brought to the knife, dismembered, fricasseed, and, in proper time, duly served up for dinner. The dish proved savoury, Monsieur smacked his lips, and the ensuing day, a repetition of the precious condiment was ordered—on the next day an encore—on the next a da capo; and so on until, on the sixth, when Pat's pusheens were exhausted, he made his appearance before his guest with an unusually sombre cast of visage. "Pigeons" said the Frenchman. "All gone, your honor," returned Pat; "an the sorrow one more in the parish for love or money, barrin the ould cat that's mouser here these four years bates Pat Patrick-mas." "The Cat!" ejaculated Monsieur. "What else," cried Pat. "Cat!" re-echoed the Frenchman, with a visible emotion of the stomach and countenance. Pat opened his mouth, scratched his head and looked aghast, Monsieur stormed, spat, and raved by turns. Pat stretched, and scratched, and scratched again, and at length an enlightenment took place. I cannot say precisely whether or not the stomach-pump had been ever this day in requisition; but certainly whether it was on this occasion put in requisition; but certain it is, that sounds and symptoms would have evidenced that such an instrument had been used effectually upon the interior of Monsieur, who did not fail to recollect to the last day of of his life Pat Durkan's pigeons.

AN IRISH SERMON.

From Bernard's Retrospections we copy the following sketch of an amusing, but judicious sermon, preached in a little chapel near Sligo, in the land of "praties":—

"My dear children! You know that I have been your Father, and Comforter, and Confessor, those six-and-twenty years next Feast of the Virgin: and you all of you know what trouble Five had in keeping Satan from taking hould of your souls. Aye, you may well look glum, but you are mighty sure, every son of Adam amongst you, that I have worked hard enough. But will you never have off your abominable tricks! Will you never grow obedient! What! you think you may sin as you plase the whole week long, and come to me for absolution at the end of it! Then I tell you what, darlings; you wont get it!—Arrah now, Mr. Pat Maloney, why did you cock your eye on the pulpit just then? I didn't say I meant you; but now you'll give me leave to suppose so. And you, Mr. Philip O'Shaugnessy—you are making a great bother wid your nose and throat, as if you had a big cowld; wait a bit, darling; I'll come to you presently, and mind if I don't tickle your rotten conscience to some tune!

"Does any body know Judy Bryant?—Och, to be sure, every body knows poor Judy; and yet I dare say some of you will pretind to tell me that you never heard or saw such a cracher in all your born days. Now, couldn't poor Judy hang her blanket out to dry—her only blanket, on her own palings, but that the Devil must put it into the heads of certain parsons, whom I have at this moment in my eye, to take fancy to the same?—Well Murtock O'Donnel, I didn't say it was you did it, altho' you do look so fidgety and flustered, nor you, Barney McShane; but you remember I said I had the parson in my eye, do you? And you, Meggy Flanagan—you can't sit say in your sate either: yet who would suspect you, that have got a comfortable bone, and your husband Teddy one of the best cobblers in the country? He now deepened his voice, and threw into his manner a very impressive solemnity. "Remember what I have said, my children!—I or Judy Bryant has lost her blanket. I have the big thafe before me that stowl it; and if it is not returned to her before to morrow morning, I'll excommunicate him and all that belongs to him; I'll have nothing more to do with him in this world or the next!"

The terrific yell which was now sent forth by the "children," drove us forth from the chapel; but with the impression on our minds, that the being who could thus combine the duties of the spiritual and the civil magistrate, was deserving in the highest degree of the public esteem; for however Philosophy might carol at the means employed, Justice was benefitted by the ends he obtained.—N. Y. Constellation.

Why is a baked potatoe hotter than a boiled one? This query in our younger days was a poser, not only to ourselves, but to our seniors, at least to those whose gravity we presume would not be offended by the simplicity of the question. Having now assumed the toga, we hasten for the benefit of at the least some of our juniors to explain the cause.—Water in an open metallic vessel, cannot be heated beyond 212 of Fahrenheit, as any degree of heat above this, converts the the fluid into vapour, and this is formed more or less rapidly in proportion to the degree of heat applied. On the contrary, when a substance, not fluid is exposed to fire, it may be heated to an indefinite extent. On this subject we can speak feelingly, having repeatedly burnt our tongues in our haste to enjoy the heterodox luxuries of the school room fire place. We may as well add that water if heated in a glass vessel will not boil till it reaches 214 deg. This probably is owing to some attraction of the fluid to the sides of the vessel.

On the wall of a house of three stories, situated at St. Germain en Laye, is the following inscription:—"Knock for the first floor, ring for the second, whistle for the third."

The Post Office Establishment of Great Britain

is arranged upon a large scale of magnitude, and is remarkable for its regularity and efficiency. The General post office has jurisdiction over all that concerns the post, in England and Scotland. Ireland has a separate establishment. The number of Postmasters in England connected immediately with the department in London is about 600,—and in Scotland about 980. There are besides seven inspectors for England and two for Scotland, whose duty it is constantly to superintend particular districts, travelling on horseback, to enforce the regulations, and communicating constantly with the heads of the office in London. Mail Packets are also regularly despatched from Falmouth for British North America, and the West Indies, where there are regular Postmasters appointed. On the continent, in the Mediterranean and in South America, agents are also appointed to receive English packet boats.

The revenue from the British Post Offices is very large. In 1838 the net income was £1,350,000—the expenses were about £700,000. The charges are high—For a distance not exceeding fifteen miles 4*d* sterling, and adding 1 penny to every increase of distance in the following manner, viz—not over 20 miles 5*d*; 30, 6*d*; 50, 7*d*, and so on to 80, 120, 170, 230, 300, 400, on which last distance the charge is 13*d*, and not heavier be added for every hundred or part of a hundred miles beyond.

OLD WELSH PROVERB.

There is a proverb forty old,
Look ye now! look ye now,
Forty good, as I've been told—
Look ye now!
This proverb is of Golden Rule,
Forty good to continue fool,
Never meddle with edge tool,
Look ye now!

(Application.)

A proverb once lecturd a file so rough,
Look ye now! look ye now—
May found her breakfast forty tough,
Look ye now!
So you four tongues above beneath,
Her wished her had not left the heath,
May keep her tongue between her teeth,
Look ye now.

In England, by a law trial in the Court of King's Bench, it has been decided, that if the coachman of a stagehack by carelessly causing two poor another round, thereby upset her, owing to the swell of the water, the proprietors of the former are liable, although there should be no actual contact.

A tavern has recently been built on the summit of Mount Faulhorn, in Switzerland. It is at an elevation of 8140 feet above the level of the sea, and is therefore between five and six hundred feet higher than the Hospice of the Great S. Bernard.

Sir Walter Scott says, in his notes to Redgauntlet, "that within his recollection, the Dumfries mail was brought north in a small mail cart; and man are yet alive who recollect when it came down with only one single letter to Edinburg, addressed to the Manager of the British Linen Company.

SCHOOL OF FLORA.

From the Medical Flora of the United States.

NORTH AMERICAN GRAPE VINES.

A

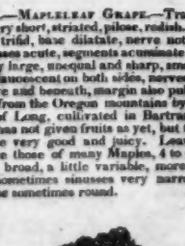
Figure A.—Stony Grape.—Branches flexuose nearly smooth. Petioles villous variable. Leaves variable cordate, often trilobed, lobes divaricate ovate acuminate, with distant acute teeth, sinuses rounded, rugose and pilose above, gray beneath. Among stones in Arkansas and Texas. Many varieties: 1. Longipes, branches fulvous hairy. Petioles very long, rusty. Leaves trilobe, base reniform. 2. Mollis. Petioles shorter. Leaves ovate 3-5 lobed, base acute cordate. 3. Blandum. Petioles long. Leaves cordate trilobe, base acute cordate, lobed pear or even overlapping, as in V. bicolor. Perhaps several species, but intermediate variable as wild vines. Grapes good.

B

Fig. B.—Long Leaf Grape.—Petioles short and hairy. Leaves oblong cordate, sinus of the base rounded, hardly trifid, or with two longer teeth near the middle, and acuminate falcate, unequal sharp teeth, pubescent above, hairy and gray beneath. Berries blue and sweet. In Arkansas and Texas, bearing fine blue grapes, very sweet. Cultivated by Mr. Hulin, in Philadelphia. Leaves small, about 4 inches long, less than 3 broad, petiole 2 inches: branches slender, round and smooth: old leaves nearly smooth.

C

Fig. C.—Maplelear Grape.—Trailing—Petiole very short, striated, pilose, redish. Leaves reniform trifid, base dilatate, nerve not marginal: sinuses acute, segments acuminate falcate, teeth very large, unequal and sharp, smooth and pale or glaucescent on both sides, nerves pubescent above and beneath, margin also pubescent. Brought from the Oregon mountains by the expedition of Long, cultivated in Bartram's garden. It has not given fruits as yet, but they are said to be very good and juicy. Leaves very much like those of many Maples, 4 to 6 inches long and broad, a little variable, more or less gashed, sometimes sinuses very narrow, that of the base sometimes round.



D

Fig. D.—Angular Grape.—Branches compose, stiff, angular and striated, smooth and purple. Petioles subequal slender subpilose.—Leaves small cordate rounded obtuse, with a few large lobular obtuse teeth, base acute, lobes divaricate, shining on both sides, axilla of the nerves bearded, margin subpilose. Fruit black, sweet and juicy. From Carolina to Arkansas and Texas, in glades, forming a bush, seldom climbing. Cultivated at Bartram's garden.—Many vulgar names, Arkansas, Bushy, Currant, and False Scupernong Grape. Leaves hardly bigger than a dollar, sometimes purplish beneath: the young ones sparingly pilose on the nerves beneath, as in the series Lactipia. Old leaves nearly smooth, angles of the stem acute, fruit small, good.

(To be concluded next week.)

From the Scott Tragedy we extract the following prescription, as a panacea, on the use of Charcoal, in Yellow Fever and Cholera Morbus, just published by Dr. Plantou. The Doctor regards the Plague, the Yellow Fever, and the Cholera, as diseases having much affinity to each other, and similar remedies are prescribed for them. His mode of treating the Cholera is simple, and not unlike that practised by Dr. Ayres, whose eccentricity is Montreal, attracted notice, and whose prescriptions saved hundreds from a premature grave.

"At the first attack of the Cholera, two ounces of pulverized charcoal ought to be administered, diluted with about four table spoonfuls of lemonade and about a pint of lime water, or simple water if the other be not at hand. The mixture ought to be well stirred up, so as to facilitate the deglutition of the charcoal—it may be divided into two draughts—soon after two ounces of castor oil ought to be given to the patient, say a quarter of an hour or half an hour after the first administration of the charcoal.

Two ounces of powdered charcoal prepared in the same way as before, to be administered; a table spoonful every quarter of an hour, and alternately administer a spoonful of sweet oil, or melted lard every half hour. It is not blindly that the undersigned has made choice of the lime water for the cure of the yellow fever, but because that substance is known to be the most powerful anti-emetic and anti-septic; that it decomposes carbonic acid; that it is the test of recognizing after death whether corrosive sublimate has been administered, and it precipitates it. It is for those reasons that he has combined it in the yellow fever, and that he recommends it as the best drink during the whole attack of the cholera morbus.—It may be sweetened with sugar, syrup or molasses; ice may be advantageously employed to cool that drink. He will add that frictions with camphorated sweet oil on the neck, breast, and abdomen of the patient, as well as making the sensation, will no doubt contribute to save the life of the patient. Small clysters of oil or melted lard, with a strong decoction of linseed, may also be administered with good effect. The only stimulants that with safety can be employed in the disease, are blisters or rather rubefacients, to the legs and thighs, and other external parts. He is of opinion that no emetics, no violent purgatives, nor stimulants of any sort, should be employed in cholera; as for bleeding, he will ask if any physician would resort to it in cases of poisoning, or highly putrid diseases. He is not Dr. Brussnan of Paris, declared in his lectures on the cholera, that the blood in that disorder turned soon to the consistence of currant jelly?"

The annual report of the New York State Temperance Society, has just been published. It is very satisfactory to friends of the cause. Among the facts stated in it are these:

There are throughout the State of New York seven hundred and sixty-four towns. Reports were received during the past year from 565 of these towns, which gave an aggregate of 1,119 Temperance associations, and 130,721 members of associations in the State. Many, indeed nearly all the towns in the State, are known to have one or more Temperance societies in them, so the number of associations of this kind in the State at this time, cannot be less than 1,200, and the number of actual members, at least from 200,000, or one-eleventh of the entire population in 1830. It is further stated in the report, that there are two hundred and fifty stores and forty-four taverns in the state that have ceased to traffic in ardent spirits. Ninety-nine distilleries have been discontinued within the last three years either from principle or necessity. Since the commencement of Temperance Societies, the reduction in the consumption of ardent spirits in New York, is estimated at five-eighths, and it is given as a low estimate, that 2,992 drunkards have been reformed. These facts must prove strong incentives for the friends of humanity to go on in the good cause.

Burnt brave Quarantine.—"Well, Doctor," said a friend the other day, to the celebrated D. C. of Philadelphia, "I hear that they have got the cholera in Rhode Island, notwithstanding all their abominable quarantines." "No matter at all, sir," said the Dr.—"it can't have cholera, we got rid of it."

The delivered value of the hardware and cutlery exported in the last year from Great Britain to foreign countries, was £1,020,631. Infinitely the greater portion of this was to the United States of America, its annual taking been nearly two-thirds of the total exportation. The total hardware of all nations in the United States exceed £4,000,000.

A boat was raised in Vincennes, Indiana, by Dr. Stark, measuring 54 inches in circumference, and weighing two pounds and three-fourths.

For Sale or Rent.
The House and Lot now occupied by the subscriber in the city of Trenton, N. J., situated in the corner of Green and Front sts. The house is large and commodious, a large kitchen and plenty of other rooms, a well pump in the kitchen and at the back door. The lot is well fenced in, and has for a few years as a boarding school for girls, and is well adapted for that purpose, center gravel for boys.
The out buildings are a wood house and coal house, a carriage house, stables and cow-house, with a hay loft over the whole; a well near the stable door; a large garden with a variety of fruits; and a good grass lot at the lower end.
The property will be shown by the subscriber on the premises. Immediate possession may be had, if required.
Feb 22, 1842 JOSHUA NEWBOLD.

A CARD.
MRS. CROSBY, grateful for past favors, informs her friends and the public, that the future of her Millinery and Fancy Goods Store will be located in Second, Second Street, Walnut street, third door above Tenth, north side.
☞ Three or four Young Ladies can be accommodated with boarding. sept 1—tf Haydon's Picture.

THIS splendid picture will remain in this city until the first of October next at the Saloon of the Franklin Institute, Fifth below Walnut street. As it is presumed there are yet many of the inhabitants of this city who have not seen it, it is the intention of the proprietor to delay its departure for a short time. A work of art like the present can rarely be found on this side the Atlantic. A production of the first genius in Europe, occupied in the labor of 16 or 18 months, containing upwards of 20 full sized colossal figures, with the appearance of thousands in the distance, is a subject of the sublime.—The entrance of the Saviour into Jerusalem is triumph!—altogether forms a spectacle which ought to come,—it is the attention not only of every amateur of the fine arts, but of the whole Christian community. It will be exhibited daily from the hour of 10 in the morning until 10 in the evening. It will be brilliantly illuminated at night with great effect by lamp light.
Admission 25 cents—children half price. sept 1—tf

Philadelphia High School for YOUNG LADIES.
THE duties of the Institution will commence on the first day of October next, instead of the first of September, as has been intimated in a previous notice. Besides the time thus gained to meet his Teachers and Pupils, and to receive such additions as may be made for selection of other young ladies, at No. 1 Franklin Place, south side of Arch.
The members of the First Department of the last year, and those who intend to attend the ensuing year, will please give their attendance on the 15th, instead of the 1st of October, as has been contemplated. The Principal has been advised thus to protract the vacation, in consequence of the prevalence of the cholera in the city of many of his patrons. CHAS. HENRY ALDEN, Principal.
sept 1—tf

Seminary for Young Ladies,
In the Brick House of the Rev. M. Pellissier's Church.
MRS. D. B. ASHTON announces to his patrons and friends, that the Seminary will be opened on the first day of September next. The Principal will be happy again to meet his Teachers and Pupils, and to receive such additions as may be made for selection of other young ladies, at No. 1 Franklin Place, south side of Arch.
The members of the First Department of the last year, and those who intend to attend the ensuing year, will please give their attendance on the 15th, instead of the 1st of October, as has been contemplated. The Principal has been advised thus to protract the vacation, in consequence of the prevalence of the cholera in the city of many of his patrons. CHAS. HENRY ALDEN, Principal.
sept 1—tf

Rev. Wm. E. Ashton's INSTITUTION FOR YOUNG LADIES,
No. 140 Chestnut Street.
WILLIAM E. ASHTON, A. M. respectfully informs his friends and the public, that the duties of his Seminary will be resumed on Monday, the 5th of September next.
He also renders his most grateful acknowledgements for the favors he has already received, and assures his patrons that no attention shall be wanting to secure their future encouragement. The pupils will be instructed by the most eminent Professors, in all the branches that constitute a liberal, scientific and ornamental education.
N. B. Five boarding scholarships, from Sept. 1st, A. M. to 1 P. M. will be exclusively devoted to English Literature. The Afternoon (optional) to the pursuit of the Latin, Greek, Hebrew, French and Spanish Languages, Music and drawing, and other ornamental parts of Female Education.
☞ A preparatory department is connected with the Institution, for the education of younger children, on moderate terms.
sept 1—tf

Card.—Dr. E. Smith Sugg,
LATE member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, and recently from Germany, Office and residence, 97 Liberty st. Pittsburgh, Penn.
aug 20—3m

Six Cents Reward.
RAN AWAY from the subscriber on the 15th of August, John Dickey, an indented apprentice boy, 14 years of age dark complexion; had on dark mixed pantaloons and vest of satinett. All persons are forbid harboring the said apprentice. Any person bringing said boy in the county, shall receive the above reward, but no charges. THOMAS MOORE.
sept 1—3t* Upper Merion Township, Montgomery Co.

Farm and Mill for Sale.
PURSUANT to the last will and testament of Jacob Pugh, late of Abington township, Montgomery county, deceased, is offered at public sale, the Real Estate of said deceased, consisting of 114 acres of land, more or less, together with a good mill.
The improvements are a two story stone house, with four rooms on a floor; a large stone barn, with outbuildings underneath; a spring house and carriage house, a two story stone tenant house, and other out buildings; a large orchard, containing a variety of well selected fruit trees.
The mill is in good working order, with two pair of stones, and is supplied with water from Jenkintown creek.
The property is in a high state of cultivation, and is large proportion of it is of a rich character; it has been generally limed, and well manured; it has been cropped, and on a plentiful supply of good and healthy vegetables, and on a plentiful supply of good and healthy vegetables, and on a plentiful supply of good and healthy vegetables